

Chapter 1 : 25 Best iPhone and iPad Games - Metacritic

1Weather is arguably the best weather app out there. It features a simple, paginated design that shows you the current weather, forecast for up to 12 weeks, a radar, and other fun stats.

The Android apps that stand alone at the top of the pantheon. There are a ton of amazing Android apps out there. However, their usefulness is usually limited to the habits of the people using them. Everybody can use these. This is not a diamond-in-the-rough kind of list. You should be relatively familiar with all of these. Looking for something new? Check out the best new Android apps and games! It features a simple, paginated design that shows you the current weather, forecast for up to 12 weeks, a radar, and other fun stats. Perhaps its best feature is its minimal design which just shows you the weather and fun facts, if you want. The free version has all of the features. Most will also likely enjoy the range of weather fun facts the app offers as well. You can, of course, buy more if needed. What makes Google Drive so special are the suite of Android apps that are attached to it. Between the office apps, the Photos app which allows unlimited photo and video backup, and Keep for note taking, you have apps for practically anything you need to do in terms of productivity. Some of the features of these apps include live collaboration, deep sharing features, and compatibility with Microsoft Office documents. Microsoft Office has a similar setup with OneDrive and Office. It gets frequent, almost weekly updates that seem to only add to its incredibly generous list of existing features. Aside from the very basics, Google Maps gives you access to places of interest, traffic data, directions to things like rest stops or gas stations, and they even let you have offline maps now albeit temporarily. It also works on most Android devices. You simply download the app and then enable it. From there, you can ask it whatever you want. It also supports a variety of commands. You can control lights, ask about population control, and it can even do simple math problems for you. There is also a second Google Assistant app for those who want a quick launch icon on the home screen. The hardware stuff costs money, but Google Assistant is free. Everyone has their preferences and saying that one is better than another is a matter of opinion at this point. Except for Google Play Music. The app can read both your local files and the music you like online. Additionally, you can upload tens of thousands of songs to the service for free. YouTube is kind of a given. YouTube Music is also now a thing. We expect the service to improve dramatically over the next year. They are the best music and video streaming package on mobile as long as they remain tied together. Click through to find out. Here are some more related app lists for you! On top of that, it can help generate nearly impossible passwords for you to use on your accounts. It has cross-platform support so you can use it on computers, mobile devices, tablets, or whatever. Additionally, the premium version is cheap. You can also grab LastPass Authenticator to go along with it for added security. There are other great options like 1Password, Dashlane, KeeppassDroid, and others that are just about as good. However, LastPass feels a little more friendly and secure usually, especially with its extra authenticator app. Nova Launcher seems to be extend beyond what normal launchers are. It comes with a host of features, including the ability to backup and restore your home screen set ups, icon theming for all of your Android apps, tons of customization elements for the home screen and app drawer, and more. You can even make it look like the Pixel Launcher if you want to. If you go premium, you can tack on gesture controls, unread count badges for apps, and icon swipe actions. The answer to that question is Pocket Casts. This insanely stable and good looking app allows you to download or stream various podcasts for your enjoyment. It features both audio-only and video podcast support so you can catch up on just about anything. There is also a light and dark theme, a sign-in feature so you can sync your podcasts across devices, and a pretty decent recommendations function. However, two stand above the rest. Both of these apps also offer SMS messaging from your desktop. Solid Explorer is pretty much as good as it gets in the file explorer apps realm. This is, by far, the best file manager on Android for most people. Best Android phones November It hit the market several years ago with a predictive engine unlike anything any other keyboard had and the app has grown a lot of over the years. Other features include a dedicated number row, SwiftKey Flow which allows for gesture typing, multiple language support, cross-device syncing of your library and much more. What it does is allow users to create custom made commands and then use them in various places. There are many apps out there that have Tasker support and you can even use Tasker to create very complex commands for NFC tags. IFTTT is another excellent automation app. In some cases, it may even be better than Tasker thanks to its simplicity and wide range of uses. However, it may be the best one. It covers the basics like recurring tasks, reminders, push notifications, various organizational features, and categories. The app also lets you share tasks and entire categories with other people. This makes it great for family use, small teams at work, or other such groups. The to-do list app is full of excellent choices, like Todoist, gTasks, and Ike along with more professional options like Asana, Trello, and others. However, TickTick just seems to strike that perfect balance of functional while still being easy to use and all of its most important features are free. It has a metric ton of wallpapers in a variety of styles. That includes abstract, photography, written word, and other categories. Some of the other features include various sort methods, categories, and multiple wallpaper sizes so that it fits your device correctly. Tapet, Wallpapers HD, and Wonderwall are also excellent options in this space. This is a wallpapers, ringtones, notification tones, and alarm tones app that gives you an unbelievable number of options to customize the most basic parts of your device. On top of having an exhaustive collection of things, Zedge also promotes various items during holiday seasons making it easy to theme your phone up for Christmas, Halloween, and other holidays. It does have the occasional bug and some irritating advertisements. Zedge Premium is a new initiative to provide premium content at a reasonable price. You watch ads or fill out surveys to earn Zedge credits. You can buy them as well with in-app purchases. ExpressVPN has servers in 94 countries including Hong Kong, Taiwan, Japan, and others in over locations around the world, so there will always be a location near you to give you the best experience possible. They are to evade the GFW specifically. Thank you for reading! Here are some more app lists you might like! You can also click here to check out our latest Android app and game lists!

Chapter 2 : Best Note Taking App | Organize Your Notes with Evernote

The Best iPhone Apps of one of the top reasons for owning an Apple iPhone is because of the ever-increasing wealth of apps available for the platform. But which ones to install? We.

There are a digital ton of Android apps. People downloaded them billions of times. Usually, the best apps will cost you a few bucks. These services are usually supported by advertising, sponsorship of some sort, or some other kind of financial arrangement. These are the best free Android apps for Android! Looking for more Android apps? It comes with all kinds of stuff including current conditions, forecasts, radar, predictions, fun facts about meteorology, graphs, and even a sun and moon tracker. The design is gorgeous as well and the app includes fairly decent and somewhat configurable widgets. You can pay for it, get premium features, and no advertising. Or you can view advertising, get the premium features, and not pay anything. Finally, you can use it ad-free, but without premium features. The choice is yours. This is great if you have nosy roommates, kids, or if you just want some piece of mind. You can use the app for free with or without ads your choice. The ad-free version has a few features missing, but the ads will unlock those features as though you paid for it. It features a simple design that helps you keep your emails in line. Additionally, it comes with support for a ton of email providers, color coding for organization, app theming, Android Wear support, and widgets. There are also a variety of smart features such as blocking notifications during certain times per account to help customize your experience. It does a lot of things right and very few things wrong. This is about as good as it gets without a price tag. There are some questions about its privacy policy, though. We recommend checking that out if things like that matter to you. What it does is let you check your credit score once per year for free. On top of that, the app will notify you when there are major changes to your credit score. The app offers some other things too, such as potential credit cards that you may qualify for based on your credit score. The notifications also let you know if a new account was opened in your name. It also has support for podcasts, YouTube channels, and more. The major good thing about using an app like Feedly is being able to bring all of your interests into one spot and read about the latest news. This might not be around forever with Feedly working on a new app, but for now, its the best RSS reader hands down. It does have gesture typing swiping , light theming, voice typing, emoji search, GIF support, and more. It can also sync between devices so your saved words go with you. These apps focus primarily on office use for documents, spreadsheets, and slideshows but also work for note taking, backing up your photos, and storing whatever file you can think of. These are all great free Android apps. To use this app, you simply download and install it, then open it one time. After that, the app will periodically notify you to ask you some questions. That credit can go toward buying yourself apps or games in Google Play. At worst, everyone should have this app installed. Using this application is very simple. You browse it for coupons for goods or services you want and then you take those coupons shopping with you in order to get discounts. Most of those awesome pictures you see on Facebook, Twitter, etc come from here. Imgur also happens to be the image upload service that most people use on Reddit. Both Giphy and Imgur are completely free to download and use. Google Maps will give you turn-by-turn directions, let you view businesses and their reviews , and all kinds of other stuff. Waze is another navigation app. It lets you check out the traffic along your route. Google Maps is definitely the more powerful of the two. Waze is a little bit more fun to use, though. Both apps get heaps of new updates and features all the time. It branches from the KeePass open source project. Additionally, you can export your stuff to proprietary file types so you can transfer the data to new devices. The paid options like LastPass and 1Password are better. It works a lot like Wunderlist, actually. You can make lists, share tasks with other people, organize your tasks in various ways, get reminders, set recurring tasks, and more. That helps with organization. There is a pro version, but it adds things like calendar support and other additional features. The free version of this is far above what most other to do list apps offer. There is a very large selection of all of those things available in a variety of genres including fantasy, mainstream, funny, and pretty much whatever else you can think of. Thanks to this, there is quite a bit of variety. There is also a premium option for wallpapers and those are pretty decent. Walli and Wallpapers HD are slightly better options for wallpapers, but the premium content helps Zedge out a lot. The premium stuff is optional, though. Here are some final app lists worth your time! If we missed any of the best free Android apps, tell us about them in the comments! To see our complete list of best app lists, click here.

Chapter 3 : The best iPhone apps of all time

Taken together, our collection is a snapshot of the Google Play Store's best apps at the time of writing. If we missed your favorite app, be sure to leave a comment.

Many of them are free. Not so great news! Click through to the following pages for each category, but first check out our free iPhone app of the week below, and make sure you give this page a cheeky bookmark so you can keep up with our latest free iPhone app pick every seven days. Free iPhone app of the week: The efficient interface makes it a breeze to work on structured text with Markdown, glancing at a live word count as you go. A customizable keyboard row provides speedy access to Markdown tools – or anything else you fancy stashing there for easy access. Or you can send them elsewhere by utilizing a range of actions. Splash out on a subscription and you unlock even more power; but for free, Drafts 5 is an astonishing bargain for anyone in the market for a top-notch iPhone text editor. The best free iPhone video editors and animation apps These are our favorite free iPhone apps for quickly editing videos, GIFs and Live Photos, and for creating stop-motion animation. It enables you to add custom soundtracks to videos – and all you need is a single finger. You can perform rehearsals using the viewfinder or with an existing video loaded from your Camera Roll. Just messing about with the audio alone is fun, but it all properly comes together when making a video. Vue Vue is a video editor whose initial incarnation was an odd mix of intriguing and ridiculous. In short, it was designed to give you six seconds of fame by snapping an ultra-short video comprising three shots. Fortunately, Vue is relaxed a bit now – and all the better for it. The app still prefers brevity, but will allow movies of up to three minutes in length and can load existing videos from your iPhone, too. Clips Clips is a video-editing app geared towards making content for sharing on social media. To that end, it eschews convention widescreen, standard titles, typical editing tracks and attempts to infuse plenty of fun into a streamlined, straightforward editing process. You can record directly in the app or import existing videos. In either case, you can overlay stickers and live captions that appear as the subject speaks, and apply filters for a different look. These can transport you into a number of stylized landscapes, including neon cityscapes and ships from Star Wars. Naturally, your tiny animated masterpiece can be exported to GIF or a movie. On giving the app permission to view your photos, it will display a scrollable feed of pictures that animate as you browse. This alone makes Motion Stills worth a download, not least because the app applies stabilization technology to your Live Photos, eradicating wobble. But with a few quick swipes you can quickly select a number of Live Photos, which can then be transformed into a tiny movie. Alternatively, you can turn Live Photos into collages, or add text and emoji to your favorites. Loop by Seedling If you lack the patience for working with full-on stop motion apps, but nonetheless fancy yourself as a mini-Aardman, Loop by Seedling is just the ticket. You shoot frames using your camera, and can handily overlay your previous photo in semi-transparent form, to ensure everything is properly lined up. Quik If you like the idea of editing home movies but are a modern-day being with no time or attention span, try Quik. All you need do is select some videos and photos, and choose a style. Quik then edits them into a great-looking video you can share with friends and family. But if your inner filmmaker hankers for a little more control, you can adjust the style, music, format and pace, along with trimming clips, reordering items, and adding titles to get the effect you desire. Cementing its friendly nature, Quik offers a little pairs minigame for you to mess about with while the app renders your masterpiece. Animatic If you used to sit there at school, doodling flick-animation masterpieces in the corner of your jotter, Animatic is the iPhone equivalent. You use simple tools to scribble on a small canvas, and then build your animation frame-by-frame. But Animatic is fun, a great way to get into animation, and a useful sketchpad for those already dabbling. In our lazier moments, we also really like Replay, which takes a bunch of videos and edits them on your behalf. Getting started is simple – select some videos and photos to import from your Camera Roll, or online sources like Facebook and Google Photos , along with, optionally, a soundtrack. Name your project, choose an orientation, and the app lays out your clips. These can be reordered by drag and drop, and transitions can be adjusted with a couple of taps. If you want to delve deeper, individual clips can be trimmed and cut, and you can apply effects. Several filters are included, as is a speed setting, and the means to overlay text.

Chapter 4 : The Best Android Apps of | blog.quintoapp.com

The Best App Ever Awards were created to celebrate the best mobile apps and games available, as chosen by you, our readers. Our goal is to help gather together the very favorite apps of the real users, not just the best-selling ones.

It supports Markdown formatting in lieu of presenting an excess of menu options although it does allow you to work with fully viewable inline images. Bear also offers a focus mode that strips away unnecessary bells and whistles from your view. You can add tags to organize your notes by simply using hashtags within the note body. And Bear stores all your notes as plain text, which keeps the app lightweight. Other features include an info panel for each note showing word count and other metadata, as well as web clipping, or the ability to automatically copy the contents of web pages to one of your notebooks via a browser extension. There are some showstoppers worth knowing about before you choose Bear. The developers who make the app have said that a web app is in the works, but they have yet to pin down a release date. Finally, the free account comes with some limitations that make it less than ideal as a note taking app no syncing, limited export formats , so be prepared to pay for a Pro subscription. What makes it special for programmers? When you create a new note, you choose either Markdown note, used for creating any kind of text document, or snippet note, which simply gives you a text editor for code. When creating and editing Markdown notes, Boostnote puts an extra panel on the right side of your window to preview the formatting of the note as you write. You can create any kind of notes you want in this note type. Markdown notes even support LaTeX blocks, for those writing hefty mathematical formulas. With Boostnotes, you can work with text snippets, too. Text snippets are lines of text you tend to use repeatedly, whether boilerplate or particular lines of code. Other excellent features include customizable hotkeys, the ability to change the font, and dozens of light and dark visual themes for the interface. Storage is entirely in your hands with Boostnote, so you can keep your notes saved locally and percent offline, or you can pop them into a file storage and syncing service of your choosing to make them accessible to you everywhere. Evernote Android, iOS, macOS, web, Windows Best note taking app for taking and searching for notes of all kinds Evernote was an early leader in the digital note taking space. In many ways, it shaped expectations about what a note taking app should do and how it should look. It has apps for all the major platforms, and with a Business account, you can even use Evernote for real-time chat and collaboration with colleagues. Evernote also doubles as an excellent scanner, and if you combine those two features, you can use the app for some pretty interesting projects, such as digitizing recipes from books. Evernote also integrates with other apps and tools you use, such as Google Drive, Slack, and Salesforce. Evernote handles all the syncing and storage. Basic members that is, those on the free plan get 60MB of space per month for storing notes and uploading files. While Evernote looks squarely like standard business software, Microsoft OneNote mimics paper. When you create a new note, you can click anywhere on the page and add content to that spot, just as if you were working with paper, rather than be tied to the linear movement of the cursor. You can choose a background for your notes that looks like textured or lined paper or use templates for meeting notes and more. OneNote also mimics the classic binder, with notebooks, sections, and tabs for organizing your notes. With OneNote, you can type text, drag and drop images and file attachments into notes, use a digital highlighter, create checklists, record audio, draw sketches, and so forth. And because each note is meant to appear like a piece of paper, you can move elements around the page, placing an audio memo next to a block of text, for example. For every note you can open a record of its version history, too. And an ink-to-text feature lets you write by hand and have your text converted to type. OneNote also integrates with other apps, such as mobile scanning app OfficeLens and the paperless system NeatConnect. You can create more OneNote integrations using Zapier. OneNote is free to use, with no feature limitations in the free version. Syncing occurs via Microsoft OneDrive, and non-paying members are capped at 5GB though you can earn additional space through some promotions and purchases. Microsoft OneNote is perhaps the best free note taking app you can find. Milanote also has a web clipper tool, so you can easily snap images online and add them to your visual notes. There are no mobile apps or desktop apps at this time, just a web app and a mobile-optimized site. It does support collaboration and sharing, however. Milanote handles syncing, storage, and backup rather than handing off those responsibilities to a third party. Free Milanote members have some tight limitations on what they can upload: Pro members get unlimited storage unlimited notes, images, links, and files , plus a search bar for all their content. Milanote Pro costs much more than other options, including Evernote Premium, however. You can use it to create all kinds of notes with your fingertips or a stylus, whether a sketch, annotated image, or handwritten text. Beautifully designed with a minimalist bent, Paper incorporates animations that make it inviting and fun to use. It has some tools for organizing your notes, too, such as the ability to group them into notebooks and share them. The Paper app also lets you choose different pen types and colors. Draw simple loops, for example, and Paper knows to turn them into neat circles. Choose the pen tool, and your writing will magically look like calligraphy. If you prefer to type on a keyboard, you can do that as well, writing text notes, checklists, and so forth. Paper also gives you a few special tools for creating business diagrams. The tip lets you create pressure-sensitive drawings, while the reverse side acts as an eraser. The app used to backup your notes for you, but the company no longer does as of March , so be sure you have adequate space in an iCloud account before committing to Paper. This online app lets you work with others on notes, documents, and spreadsheets while discussing the work in the same place. Quip shines brightest when you used it to collaborate with others. Quip is thorough in how it saves, documents, and displays every single suggested edit, question, and comment in your notes. It provides complete visibility into how the collaboration process works. You can connect your Quip account to other tools, such as Dropbox and Google Drive, and you create other Quip integrations by using Zapier. With Quip, you and your teammates can create folders and subfolders to organize your notes. The search function is reliable, but not especially fast, given Quip accounts often have a lot of data beyond plain text in them. With a paid plan you get unlimited storage, too. True to its name, Simplenote gives you a clutter-free space for creating and editing notes. You get little more than an unlimited number of blank white pages for making plain text notes. Simplenote is a pure minimalist in the note taking app category. Seeing as you can save nothing but typed text, the search functionality is fast. Syncing and storage comes included. You get a version history for all your notes and the ability to restore any prior version. You also get tags for sorting and organizing your notes, plus options for sharing and collaborating with others. Simplenote can run in any browser, and there are apps for all the major platforms as well. The app was designed to have low latency, meaning as soon as your stylus or finger drags across the screen, the mark in the app should show up immediately, with little to no delay. In the app, your options for paper include blank white pages, lined pages, staff paper for music, and gridded graph paper in a variety of styles. You can write or draw freeform, as well as import images and PDFs to annotate them. Squid supports digital signatures, too, so you can import a document that you need to sign, scribble your name on it, export it as a PDF, and send it to the recipient. Squid includes other tools for capturing, organizing, and editing notes. While the app is free to download, Squid sells a Premium subscription that unlocks all the paper backgrounds, tools, and a few capabilities you might actually need. Some of the features restricted to Premium are a highlighter; a few shape tools; the ability to import PDFs for markup; and the option to backup, restore, and bulk export options using Box or Dropbox. Squid is one of the best apps for Android and Chromebook that supports handwriting, image and PDF markup, and other ways to take notes. When you first create an account, the app encourages you to create a few notebooks, which appear on screen as notebooks with different images for their covers. You can name them however you like. As you create notes, whether by typing them, uploading images, or clipping them from web pages, you can add rich text formatting. Your notes then appear as cards with preview images when applicable. You can also lock notes, add time and date reminders to them, view their full version history, and revert back to an earlier version. Zoho directly manages saving and syncing, and the company gives you as much storage space as you need, with no limit. There is a maximum file upload size of 50MB, however. Note taking apps come in many shapes and sizes to meet different needs. Some people may need a fully loaded app with a lot of functionality, such as OneNote or Evernote, while others prefer less clutter and fewer features, which is what you get from an app such as Simplenote. Not all note taking apps are free, but most of them offer at least a free trial, if not a free version with limitations, so that you can try out a few before settling on the one that works best for you. Chapter 5 : Best iPhone Apps for - CNET

Here's our comprehensive list of the best iPhone apps available, from time-saving productivity tools to dating to food, and on to fun apps you won't be able to put down.

Showbox App Without any doubt, the Showbox app is one of the best free movie apps for watching movies on an Android. In recent times, no app gained so much popularity for free movies. There is a whole lot of things which you can get from this app. Other than your favorite latest movies, you can also watch the most famous TV shows of recent times streaming online. This app is a favorite of many. One bad news is that you will not find this amazing app in Google Play Store. Just download it and install to your phone for getting an amazing experience. Now there is another great feature to the app. You can not only watch movies but download them and watch at your desired time completely offline. For anime lovers, it is a heaven as there is a complete library to download animes. FreeflixHq Just like Showbox , it is another movie app which gained great popularity in recent times. It is said that the app has more than a thousand TV shows and over 15K movies along with a huge number of animation. Just like the previous two apps, terrarium and Showbox, this app also have the downloading option for movies and TV shows. This app is available for different platforms like Android, Windows, and Mac. Once I test app on all device, a complete review would be made available. Until then share your experience with this app. The app has the support of various modern gadgets, among them the most renowned is Chromecast support. The app can be downloaded from the official website of the app.

Download FreeFlix App 3. TeaTV Now, this is similar to the terrarium and free flixHq. Like most of the movie apps mentioned in this list, Teatv is available for Android, Mac, and windows. The perfect apps to watch movies on mobile. The app is completely free and comes with multiple links to stream from. You can watch trailers, read reviews of movies and check the latest and upcoming releases. In fact, apps give you the option to create a watchlist and track down the content you wish to watch. To proceed further, I hope you know the consequences of using such apps. There are multiple free legal apps that work well with all modern device. If you keen to install app, use a good VPN app before accessing any content. Do let us know how this app working for you as we need user feedback. TerrariumTV For downloading movies on Android, no app can be compared with the terrarium. Recently this app has become immensely popular among movie lovers. It is a bit different from Showbox as the TV series and movies are hosted by terrarium on Google Drive and some other similar cloud space. You can also get subtitles for the shows and movies from this app. This is an added benefit if you are a non-English speaker or know little English. One of the best Android app to download free movies on the mobile device. On the screen, you can check out different shows and movies just by swapping. Some people face problem in Showbox, for them, the terrarium is best. With the recent updates from developer, this app may not work properly, even though we have listed the latest version. Download Terrarium App 5. Tubitv App With so many people downloading and posting their reviews daily, it is really tough to get a 4-star rating in Google Play Store. The app is known for its amazing features and that too absolutely free. The interface is quite simple and you can watch movies and TV shows by just a click. You can even watch the shows and movies all the major platforms. TubiTv is backed and funded by giants in the entertainment industry to provide the flawless and free option for watching movies on Mobile. There are more than titles to choose from. There are very few apps which feature Kung Fu and Korean dramas. Your hunt ends now as the app is known to have both. To be announced 6. Snagfilms App Another amazing app which makes our list is the Snagfilms app. You can watch from a list of more than movies in this app. There are different types of movies in the app like Bollywood, Spanish, Chinese, Korean, and African. Different genres of movies like Action, Classic, and Horror are available here. This app has really set our expectation and trust of movies to a next level. Snagfilms is a live example of great content and quality targetting huge audience for free. The movies are of high definition. It can be downloaded from the Google Play Store or app store. The app also has support for all the major streaming devices. Viu This app is there for quite a long time but gained immense popularity recently and all of that because of the advertisement campaign which started lately. They are known to showcase some of the best TV shows and movies absolutely free. This is the best app for the Korean TV series lovers. The app is very well known in the Google Play Store and gained a user rating of over four stars. The app can be easily used due to its simple yet effective interface. You can also download content and view them offline. Viu has partnered and created many cricket talk shows here you can follow and watch your favorite cricketing stars. To be announced 8. MovieHD App Sometimes ago, you could have found the app on Google Play Store but now it has been removed from there due to the violation of some policies. But though it is removed from play store, it is still running strong and been loved by the movie lovers. The app can be downloaded on both Android and iOS platforms. Now the functions of the app have a lot of similarity with the Showbox app. This app supports Chromecast so you can easily view movies on TV using the app with the help of a Chrome device. This app is known for working on both Android and iOS platforms. I suggest you stick with other apps rather than installing MovieHD directly. Crackle Another free app which will help you to stream TV shows and movies completely free is Crackle. The app is only a streaming app and does not provide the downloading option like Showbox app. But the plus point of the app is the huge number of movies of different genres which you can easily watch streaming in the app. What makes this app different and better from other apps is its great user support and a simple interface. A huge number of user use this app and are very happy with it. It is evident in their reviews which are extremely positive. The only negative point of the app is that the app cannot be accessed outside the US. To be announced Viewster One of the leading video services of Europe is without any doubt Viewster. The platform is known for showcasing TV shows, movies, and popular anime series which you can stream and watch online on your android smartphone. For watching anime online , this is one of the few legal anime apps so if you are an anime lover, this app is a must download for you. The App mainly focuses on genuine and original content rather than mainstream Hollywood movies. The app supports Chromecast so you can watch movies and shows on TV. PopcornFlix The name has a similarity with Netflix but the app is completely different. There are a lot of people who get confused between Netflix and Popcorn Flix. You can use this app for absolutely free and stream the latest movies online. The app claims that they add a new movie every day. That means you can watch new movies every day without any charge. The app adds the latest Bollywood movies too but finding some good Hindi movie is not that easy. For Bollywood and Hindi content I suggest you try Voot or Hotstar as they are dedicated to the specific audience. When compared to Popcornflix app, Hotstar is loaded with the best of content. Mobdro This is an app where you could not only watch TV shows and movies but you can also watch live TV streaming , news, and sports. You will find the links in the app for watching all these stuff. The quality of the streaming is pretty good and the best part is that there is no lagging. The app is famous for providing a lot of services. Instead of using a cable TV, just use this free app and you can save a lot of money. The rise in cable TV price made Mobdro star among cord cutters.
