Scooby-Doo character Scooby-Doo is the eponymous character in the Scooby-Doo animated television series created by the popular American animation company Hanna-Barbera. Scooby-Doo is the pet and lifelong companion of Shaggy Rogers and in many iterations, including the original series, is regarded as a unique anthropomorphic Great Dane dog who is able to speak in broken English, unlike most other dogs in his reality, and usually puts the letter R in front of words spoken. From to , he was voiced by Scott Innes. In Scooby-Doo and Scooby-Doo 2: Monsters Unleashed , Scooby was voiced by Neil Fanning. Scooby is currently "present" voiced by Frank Welker the voice of Fred Jones. Shaggy is a cowardly slacker more interested in eating than solving mysteries. He is the only Scooby-Doo character besides Scooby to appear in all iterations of the franchise. From to , Shaggy was voiced by Casey Kasem ; he would return to voice him again from to Shaggy is currently "present" being voiced by Matthew Lillard , who played Shaggy in the live action theatrical films. Fred usually takes the lead in solving mysteries. When searching for clues, Fred and Daphne usually go together with Velma coming along, but sometimes Fred and Daphne would pair off, having Velma to go with Shaggy and Scooby. In A Pup Named Scooby-Doo , Fred was depicted as being somewhat less intelligent, believing in legends such as Bigfoot and mole people , and liked reading a magazine called The National Exaggerator. In each episode, Fred would usually wrongly blame the crime on the neighborhood bully Red Herring a play on the idiom red herring. In his teenage version he is shown to have many interests obsessions for traps, martial arts, wrestling, and weight lifting. He is shown to be hopeless at speaking any language other than English. The Mystery Map he is called Fredward. Fred is voiced by Frank Welker , who has retained this role throughout every incarnation of each series where Fred is portrayed as a teenager from to and again since Daphne was portrayed as the enthusiastic, but clumsy and danger-prone, hence her nickname "Danger-Prone Daphne" revealed by her cousin, Shannon, being danger-prone is a Blake family trait in Scooby-Doo! She serves as the damsel in distress and would occasionally get kidnapped, tied up, gagged and left imprisoned. Scooby and Shaggy usually save her, but sometimes Fred and Velma or even the whole gang do it. But as the franchise went on, she became a stronger, more independent character, who can take care of herself. Daphne is also seen as the moral support in adaptations such as Mystery Incorporated. When Scooby is nowhere to be found, Daphne also shouts "Scooby-Doo! In later series, Daphne is the one who owns the Mystery Machine and lets Fred drive it due to her crush on him. She occasionally helps the rest of the gang capture the villain by using some random, yet helpful, accessories in her purse, backpack, or any other bag she has at the moment. For example, in one episode, the gang is tied to posts by ropes, so Daphne pulls out her credit card and slices the ropes in half, leaving her free to untie the other members of the gang. On the sail boat, the snake demon attacks Daphne and demands an idol to return. Daphne throws it to Scooby, Shaggy and Scrappy. Her usual appearance consists of a purple dress, pink pantyhose , purple shoes, and a green scarf. In Scooby-Doo and the Cyber Chase , she wore a purple and green three-piece suit with matching shoes. As a child, she wore a pink sweater, red skirt, and pink pantyhose with white go-go boots. In The 13 Ghosts of Scooby-Doo, she wore some other purple clothes with purple pants and purple high heels. While not as clever as Velma, Daphne would always solve her problems in a different way. The character later became more confident and started playing a more active role as time went on, a result of changing attitudes towards women during the s and s. The youthful pre-teenage Daphne portrayed in A Pup Named Scooby-Doo would commonly call upon her butler , Jenkins, to do various tasks, such as ridding her of people, beating up a monster, freaking out, etc. This Daphne is also shown to be more narcissistic and sarcastic than usual. In the movie Scooby-Doo on Zombie Island , Daphne as a young adult, had a very successful investigative TV series called Coast to Coast with Daphne Blake on a fictional channel called "Americana", which the show had aired on for two seasons. Throughout the various incarnations of the character, there has been speculation that Daphne and Fred had an attraction toward each other. This is emphasized in Scooby-Doo! Throughout the first season, they are shown to be actively dating with Fred showing more of his feelings toward Daphne. Daphne was voiced by Indira Stefanianna Christopherson from to Daphne was voiced by Mary Kay Bergman from to Daphne was voiced by Grey DeLisle in and she is the current voice of Daphne. She was portrayed by Sarah Michelle Gellar in the live-action films and by Kate Melton in the live-action telefilms. Velma Dinkley Throughout her various incarnations, Velma is usually portrayed as a highly intelligent young woman with various interests ranging from highly specified sciences which in the "Scooby and Scrappy Doo" series leads her to pursue a career as a NASA research scientist or merely being very well read on various and sometimes obscure information, such as ancient Viking writing as in the third Scooby Doo series "The New Scooby Doo Mysteries".

Abracadabra-Doo , Velma is described by her younger sister Madelyn as being "born with a mystery book in her hand". Consequently, Velma is usually the one to figure out the mystery, sometimes with the help of Fred and Daphne. In the first series, notably Where Are You! When Scooby is too afraid to volunteer to help with a mission, Velma often offers him a dog treat called a " Scooby Snack " as a bribe. In the original Where Are You! However, in the second series, The New Scooby Doo Movies, Velma is said to have graduated from a different high school than her friends as stated in the episode "Spirited Spooked Sports Show". In the current series, Velma is stated to be a native of Ohio, unlike the other members of the gang. Marla Frumkin replaced her from and would voice the character again in Velma was voiced by B. Ward from to Velma was voiced by Mindy Cohn from In Be Cool, Scooby-Doo! After his addition to the show proved to be a ratings success, Hanna-Barbera restructured the show around Scrappy in The original format of four teenagers and their dog solving supernatural mysteries for a half-hour was eschewed for simpler, more comedic adventures which involved real supernatural villains the villains in previous Scooby episodes were almost always regular humans in disguise. Scrappy remained an integral part of the Scooby-Doo franchise, on both television and in Scooby-related licensed products and merchandising, through the end of the s. Teamed with his uncle Yabba-Doo and Deputy Dusty, he helped maintain law and order in a small town in the American west. In later years, the presence of Scrappy-Doo has been criticized as having had a negative effect on the various Scooby-Doo series of the s. In the first live-action Scooby-Doo theatrical film " where Scrappy played a decidedly negative role, wanting revenge on Mystery Inc. When Velma is talking to a guy at the bar who likes her, she tells him that Scrappy was not a puppy, but had a glandular disorder. Like all the previous direct-to-video movies, Scrappy never made an appearance. Scrappy was voiced by Lennie Weinrib from to He was replaced by Don Messick who would voice him from to In the first live action theatrical movie he was voiced by Scott Innes. The inclusion of Scooby-Dum is considered one of the first missteps in Scooby-Doo cartoons. His adventures take place out west, where he fights crime with his master, a bumbling deputy named Deputy Dusty, and his enthusiastic nephew Scrappy-Doo. She is seen walking past the screen in two separate scenes in the beginning. He is first visited by Shaggy, Scooby, Daphne and Scrappy with Flim-Flam, after they need some help with their plane, which has crash-landed in a nearby temple in Tibet. After Shaggy and Scooby unwittingly unleash thirteen terrible ghosts from the chest in which they were locked, Van Ghoul tells them that they must trap them again. He shares personality traits with his voice actor, Vincent Price , like having a very morbid and dark sense of humour. Mystery Incorporated , Van Ghoul is an actor who does horror films much like Vincent Price , who was the inspiration for his character. He is constantly referenced and glimpses of his movies can be seen throughout the series according to Shaggy he has done more than movies. However, he was kicked out of town, and managed to meet up with the current Scooby gang, who was trying to find the Mystery Machine an airplane hidden by Bogel and Weerd. He took them to a psychic Vincent Van Ghoul who could help the whole group find their mode of transportation, and warned them of ensuing danger. Daphne is given a drink laced with wolfsbane due to the fact the townspeople believe that she overheard their secret, and when the night falls on the town, the group finds out that the whole town is actually a werewolf cult. They are pursued into the sewers, and Flim Flam opens one of his products to spray on Daphne, who reverts to normal. He goes on to cure the rest of the townspeople, who are ever grateful for the help. When Scrappy , Daphne and Flim Flam question them as to how they got that way in the first place, they are told that they were turned into werewolves as revenge for sealing the Thirteen Ghosts into the Chest of Demons, and the current group races to keep Shaggy and Scooby from opening the chest, but to no avail. After Shaggy and Scooby open the chest and release the thirteen ghosts within it, Flim Flam decides to join them in their hunt to return them to the chest. Daphne remarks that Flim Flam was arrested and received a harsh sentence of 25 years to life for being a juvenile con-artist this was an inside joke; 25 years had passed between 13 Ghosts in and Mystery Incorporated in Flim Flam is voiced by Susan Blu. Weerd and Bogel [edit] Bogel is a fat, dimwitted ghost while Weerd is a tall, skinny ghost. Weerd is the mastermind of the two. Weerd comes up with a scheme to lure Shaggy and Scooby to open the Chest of Demons so he and Bogel can gain some glory with the 13 ghosts. In nearly every episode, Weerd and Bogel attempt to help out one of the chest escapees in fulfilling their master plan. Throughout the series, Weerd and Bogel try to get into S. Bogel is voiced by Howard Morris. They first appeared in Scooby-Doo! Their role in the Scooby-Doo franchise has seen them as three honorary members of Mystery Inc. When it comes to their popularity, in Scooby-Doo! Mystery Incorporated , they are already a worldwide popular band, having Velma as their number one fan in Crystal Cove. In the movie Scooby-Doo! Along with Scooby and the rest of the gang, they end up giving out a concert to pay for the damage the Ravencrofts did. They end up being saved, and accompany the gang to their performance at the festival.

She has red hair russet-orange in the cartoon , deep blue eyes and freckles. Cassidy is very much like Irma, as she loves to have fun, and often likes to make jokes. Contents [show] History Little is known about Cassidy in the comics, but in the cartoon she lived in a house in Heatherfield with her mother Emily, and the two were very close. Cassidy was very "aquatic": Cassidy also liked going to the beach. She described Shell Beach as her favorite place in town. She mentioned she liked walking into the ocean, looking at cute boys and going for a swim. Cassidy had compassion for all living things and wanted to be a Doctor, more specifically a pediatrician. She became a Guardian at 15 years old. Being the past Guardian of Water, Cassidy had the power to manipulate water at will and mind control. She was later entrusted with the Heart of Kandrakar when the Council of Kandrakar realized its power was corrupting Nerissa. Nerissa became obsessed with the power lost. She begged, and later ordered Cassidy to give the Heart back. When Cassidy refused, she was accidentally killed by Nerissa, who as punishment, was locked away in Mount Thanos. Cassidy appears to Will and reveals she has been waiting for their contact since the time of her death, with silence as her only companion. She says she bears no ill will towards Nerissa for killing her or the Oracle for letting her die, claiming that they did only what they were supposed to do to keep balance in the universe. Their conversation ends with Cassidy giving Will her own Heart of Kandrakar to battle Nerissa before Cassidy vanishes into her star, assumed to be a sign her spirit has moved on. Cassidy remained a mind-controlled spirit until all of C. After Nerissa was defeated, Cassidy was freed. She rejoined her year old mother and continued her life. She is voiced by Susan Chesler in the animated series. Powers and Abilities Comics in the comics she has all of the powers that Irma does, she also possessed the powers bestowed upon the keeper of the heart except for Quintessence she also had the ability to create a shadow of the heart, which would work like the normal heart.
