The night was dark and stormy, the rain coming down in heavy sheets. Lightning flashed, thunder cracked, and the trees swayed in the fierce wind. Inside a house near the edge of Duckburg lived a young woman duck named Della and her triplet six-year-old sons, Huey, Dewey, and Louie. Della seemed to be unaware of the storm that raged outside. That was because she was passed out on the sofa, drunk. Three empty bottles of wine rested on the floor next to her. Yes, Della was a mother of three and an alcoholic. She was also addicted to heroin, pills, and tobacco. She did one or two of them a day, not caring if the boys witnessed it or not. The boys quietly slipped past their sleeping mother as they headed toward the kitchen. They had to be careful not to wake her. One wrong move and their mother would get angry. No, this anger would leave the boys on the floor, crying and bruised. Just this afternoon, Della had beaten them because they interrupted her from watching TV. That was before she got drunk and passed out. The boys finally made it to the kitchen. Dishes were piled up in the sink, heroin needles covered the table, and hundreds of bottles of wine were on the counter, some empty and some half drunken. They were too high for the six-year-olds to reach. Dewey grabbed a chair that was next to the window. Since he was too small to lift it, he slid it across the floor and over to the sink. Huey and Louie exchanged looks. Then they began to help their brother. The six-year-olds were unaware that Della was waking up. She got up from the sofa and staggered toward the kitchen. The boys had just finished pouring out another bottle of wine when the kitchen light suddenly flickered on. They quickly turned around, finding their mother standing in the doorway of the kitchen. The boys were too scared to answer. Though her vision was a bit blurry, Della noticed a wine bottle lying down next to the sink. She then realized what the boys were doing. Della grabbed a belt that hung from a hook next to the kitchen. The boys ran toward the wall. Della approached the frightened children. The boys hugged one another and pressed against the wall. Della opened the front door and tossed the bruised children out into the storm. She slammed the door and locked it. The boys helped one another to their feet. An elderly couple, Pauline and Peter, was sitting on their sofa watching TV when they heard their doorbell ring. Pauline stood up and went to answer the door. She was shocked at what she saw; three little boys drenched and bruised. By that time, Peter had walked in. He noticed his wife hugging the three young children. Where did they come from? The poor dears look famished". He and Pauline led the children to the bathroom. After the boys were dried off, Peter and Pauline dressed them in fresh, dry clothes. Afterward, the boys were given some hot food to eat. Huey was the first to speak up. Pauline and Peter exchanged looks. Did they hear right? Were these poor children actually being abused by their mother? After giving the boys some hot cocoa to drink, Peter and Pauline called the police and told them that they had three young boys who were beaten and tossed into the storm by their mother. Afterward, they talked to a representative from child services. Although it was late, the representative was happy to come out and ask some questions. Elsewhere, Della was sitting on her sofa smoking another cigarette when there was a pound on the door. Who could be knocking on the door this late and why were they knocking so hard? Because she thought it was the boys begging to come back in, Della ignored the knocking. But then the knock came again. Frustrated, Della slammed her cigarette into the ash tray and went to answer the door. The Lieutenant held up a badge. Della jerked her arm away. Two of the policemen grabbed Della by her arms. As she struggled to get free, a stun gun suddenly struck her in the back, causing her to tumble to the floor. Breathing heavily, Della attempted to get up, but was struck with the stun gun again. While Della was being handcuffed, the rest of the police scoped the house. They found heroin needles on the table, several wine bottles on the counter some empty, some half empty, and cigarettes. While they took photos, Lieutenant Hicks pulled Della to her feet and out to the patrol car. Lisa Jones finished talking with the boys, who had told her everything that they told Peter and Pauline. Pauline kneeled down in front of the boys. The boys exchanged looks. They turned back to Pauline and nodded. The next morning, the boys were sitting at the table eating the breakfast Peter and Pauline had prepared for them when there was a knock at the door. Peter went to answer it, finding Donald on the other side. Donald stepped inside and Peter led him to the kitchen. He looked down at his nephews. Donald felt a tug on his sleeve. The boys had finished eating. Told you it was long. I tried not to make it that way though. Please read and review and please nothing negative. Next chapter should be up soon. More flashbacks to come later in the story. Your review has been posted.

This thing is able to measure totem light? The totem light is the main thing. Naturally, different people will have differing strength and information, so the result will be different as well. These types of custom made heirlooms require an activation phrase so that no one will take advantage of it, right? What a man without any sense of humor. The sky was grey and cloudy, shrouding the sun completely. The whole sky was covered with clouds. The mountain valley was filled with green fern plants. There were a variety of them, from small to big and short to tall. They covered the whole mountain valley, just like a forest. White mist lingered between the ferns and caged the whole valley, covering the whole scene in a layer of white. It was almost as if someone were looking through a pair of fogged up glasses. The mountain valley was like a small basin, covered by elevated green hills. The entrance to this basin was a small green fern forest. Two black silhouettes flew passed the fern forest at great speed, and slowly landed at the entrance of the mountain valley as they formed into two black shirted human figures. As the black smoke dispersed, Garen looked into the mountain valley from afar, and through the white mist, he could see that the mountain valley was filled with levitating stones. These stones, big and small, were levitating quietly in the middle of the air inside the mountain valley, as if they were supported by something from below. The largest stone was at least ten meters wide and even had a little tree and a small grass field on top of it. Both of them put on their magic mirror pauldrons on their left shoulder. The faint green colored pauldron looked like a beautiful jade stone. Should we enter it directly? Silent, Garen squatted down as he touched the dirt on the ground. Two crowds, in black and blue, were facing each other. The people in black shirt were obviously from Black Sky. All of them were wearing black masks and were different from the lot from before. Every one of them had black gas surrounding them, giving off a rather strange presence. The one who stood at the front was their leader. He was in a black robes and white mask, which had three red lines on the mouth and eyes. The design was very simple, where the red lines formed into a smiley face on the mask as it gave off a strange and mysterious vibe. The people they were facing against were a group of people in ice blue armor. There were a total of four of them, and were staring coldly at what was in front of them. The one who stood at the front was a flat chested woman with a brown ponytail. She had a brown whip in her hand, half of it had dug into the ground, as if it were a wiggling, living creature. There was a golden staff in the middle of both parties. There were layers of small circles on the staff, which was placed on a white stone. What was strange was that the staff was surrounded by a thin layer of ice. You have become too greedy. What right do you have to say that it is yours? What matters is you people have discovered this heirloom in our territory. The woman was annoyed. We are the ones who deciphered the activation phrased first. Why do we have to pass it to you!? They hand spent countless days deciphering the activation phrase of the golden staff, and the members of the Black Sky appeared and attempted to remove the gemstone out of it. The members of the Black Sky claimed that this heirloom was left by their ancestors, and they just happened to forgot the activation phrase. Hence they were currently in a stalemate. As one of the captains of the powerful ice castle, the girl with the ponytail was filled with rage. They were stronger in terms of power as they had two form three totem users and two form two elites, whereas the Black Sky only had one form three and two form two totem users. However, the Black Sky had a stronger identity, which made them unable to make any moves, and were oppressed by the opposing party instead. She knew that she was stronger but was forced to restrict herself. These made the four people of the Ice Castle start to fill with anger. Although it was just an imitation product of a heirloom, it was still important to the ice castle. Within this chaotic era, every ounce of strength attainable was considered precious, including the heirloom. Give us the activation phrase and you can leave. The ponytail woman gritted her teeth as she gave a deadly stare towards him. Suddenly, the white masked man looked at the other side of the mountain wall. They were in hunter attire and looked very well trained. Suddenly the man beside him screamed as he shriveled at an incredible speed. He looked like a deflating balloon, and soon dropped onto the ground with only his skin left. The remaining two of them were stunned and immediately retreated as they scanned their surroundings in fear. The White Ghost let out a shrill laughter. You guys are still alive because of the Black Tiger King, and you guys think that you are some hot shot? Although he was just a form one totem user, it was terrifying to see him killed abruptly. It seemed that the White Ghost was not an opponent that could be easily dealt with. At that moment, two black, misty figures appeared behind the white masked man, and soon condensed into two tall humanoid figures. The two figures were a male and a female, who had a black and green hair respectively. Both of them looked young, and seemed to be in their early thirties. Both had on their shoulders black robes, with golden-green armor on their feet. The black haired man nodded. These two groups were the major power players in the nearby area. All of them naturally were no small characters since they were able to survive in such an environment. The man started to become impatient and was about to open his mouth. Suddenly he felt that the sky had become cloudy. Is it about to rain? Everyone in the area looked up and was stunned as they saw a gigantic mouth in the sky. A black cloud was slowly approaching from the mountain valley. It was a cloud filled with countless black crows! The black haired man recalled something and his face went pale. The Eight Cloud Crow! The people of the Ice Castle were stunned as well, as they looked at the sky that was being swallowed by the clouds of crows. These crows, which had some strange mist surrounding, them kept producing a rather weird scream. The RAL has arrived! Whoever did would be considered going against them, and going against them meant betrayal to the Alliance, and betrayal to the Alliance meant a rebellion, a rebellion that needed to be eliminated!! With such a huge superpower arriving the scene, whoever provoked them meant that they would drag the Black Tiger King into the issue with them.

Chapter 3 : Fairytale Island (COMPLETE!!!) - Chapter 1: An Unexpected Death - Movellas

The mare raised and looked at her with a relieved face, when Celestia gave a better look at her, she noticed she was kinda young, not older than 21, she had white fur and red mane, indeed a beautiful and innocent mare, then it came to her, maybe she was the one, Celestia approached to her and said.

As the Liset dipped back into the cold waters, Lilith became extremely alert and silent. I looked up the HUD again, the system was unable to pinpoint the exact location of the Grineer Science Officer but could point me in the general direction. It was a greatest mystery to me that how she managed to track movements of every single Tenno. But then again, having a processor instead of the human brain might have something to do with that. It was a Grineer foot soldier, designated as Butcher. Looks like he was saying all was clear in the area. Must have been a Heavy Gunner. But Lilith had caught a sight of them now, she bent forward, ready and waiting. As she lowered her head and arched her back into what seemed like a perfect stalking posture, she let out a muffled bark. I knew that voice was just a feedback mechanism into my somatic link, to let me know that the stalk percept cloaking has been engaged. The longest range possible would have been at least 40 meters reliably, with the Grakatas. Klovor hu reig sohmekling? They definitely heard Lilith. Well, in this case, it would be alerting the area early than I planned for. My list of options just got severely limited. Maybe, just maybe, these guys are isolated. I could take them out now and move on without rest of them noticing. Great, I was relieved. I am better at this. Lilith closely followed me. She never engaged unless I engaged first. We crossed ahead and slipped through the next door. Well, no time to think about that, I had already slipped past the two more corridors in the general direction of my target. I sneaked ahead, still wary and ready to take cover, eyes fixed at the target. But suddenly, the Grineer Lancer on my left, which was fooling around with his gun moved slightly more to the left and exposing the most bizarre sight I have seen so far in my life. The facility must have been some type of prototype to the large scale facilities we had seen on Uranus, built in the same fashion and style. So many abandoned canisters of the weird viscous elixirs lay in the corners. There were tubes, large enough to accommodate even the Eximus Ancients, but in one of those tubes, there was a Warframe! My heart skipped a beat. My mind started working out possibilities at an accelerated rate. Should I notify this to Lotus? Or should I try to do something about it? This was crazy as it is, it just had to be crazier and crazier. Get ready for a fight. I totally forgot about Science Officer. I turned around, Hek in the hand, and tried to locate him. He had already taken off, but not through the door. My Vauban instinctively bullet jumped towards the target, but I missed and landed on the wall instead. I jammed the iron sight trigger. The iron sight shifted just fine for me to take aim towards the fleeing Grineer figure and squeezed the trigger. Hek functioned perfectly, and I had unloaded 4 shots perfectly into the exposed back of the target. He cried in pain, falling to his knees and then tumbling over. Another faint cry of pain just rose and died out abruptly. I threw a quick look towards the general direction. Lilith had attacked the other Lancer in the room and torn it in half, and was excitedly running towards me now. Looking back at our target, seems like my shots had ripped his armor plating to shreds. My mission was done. Your part is done here, Tenno. Wishing that she heard me. Well, the least I can do is to check this out. While moving towards the tube I saw back there. What the heck was that? Get a copy of write-up too, if you can. And yes, mark this location, down to the nanometer. I might need to revisit this facility later. Ordis went silent after that. I had gotten near the tube in question by now. Sure enough, my eyes did not deceive me earlier. That was a Warframe. It seemed like an Excalibur, but it sported the Proto-Armor pattern, but with a different helmet design. It was way too similar to the Mortred variant. I was almost too sure that Codex scans would not reveal a thing. Proven correct a moment later, as it failed to recognize the warframe even as a valid object for a scan. She had shut off the com link already. Frustrated, but I still was determined to learn what I could from this. Letting my Vauban capture a full view of the enclosed warframe. Vauban barely needs a second to get a detailed holographic render, would suffice in most cases, but I wanted more than that. I need two more seconds and done. Thank you for your patience, Operator. Lotus and I would like you to extract as soon as possible.. Not by choice though. But the mission was far too important to be sidetracked likes this. Probably Lotus knew all this. Good thing I did it stealthily, and with no witnesses thanks to Lilith. Now aboard the Orbitor, I leaned back and opened my eyes to the skylight.

When we arrive the Company is already waiting and impatient, while the four of us eat. On The Road To Weathertop. As we ride Bofur asks me to sing some songs of my people, I ask Thorin which songs he remembers from our childhood, he answers, " All that is gold and I see fire, Mythralis, that is my answer. All that is gold does not glitter, Not all those who wander are lost; The old that is strong does not wither, Deep roots are not reached by the frost. From the ashes a fire shall be woken, A light from the shadows shall spring; Renewed shall be the blade that was broken, The crown-less again shall be king. The Company applauds, Thorin motions me to continue. Oh, misty eye of the mountain below! If this is to end in fire, Then we shall all burn together! Watch the flames climb high Into the night. Calling out father, oh! And if we should die tonight, Then we should all die together! Raise a glass of wine, for the last time! Watch the flames burn auburn on the mountainside. Desolation comes upon the sky! Now I see fire, inside the mountain! I see fire, burning the trees! And I see fire, hollowing souls! I see fire, blood in the breeze! Confined in mountain halls we got too close to the flame! Hold fast and we will Watch the flames burn auburn on the mountainside. And if the night is burning I will cover my eyes, For if the dark returns the my brothers will die! And as the sky is falling down, It crashed into this lonely town! And with that shadow upon the ground, I hear my people screaming out! And I see fire! Oh, you know I saw a city burning up! Feel the heat upon my skin! And I see fire burn auburn on the mountainside! As the Company clapped, I remembered the past and how Thorin and I met. Sorry for the cliffhanger peeps. Writers Block has me cuffed in a cage. Your review has been posted.

See the end of the chapter for notes. Chapter Text Harry ran out after Mr. Something had gone wrong, terribly wrong. Snape was upset, and Harry wanted to fix it. Snape was standing on the back steps, just standing there and looking out at the tiny patch of dirt that could barely be called a back garden. They were thin and scraggly, with tiny flowers that looked as though they were struggling to open, and Harry wondered whether Mr. Snape would let him help with them. Snape was moving, fumbling a pack of cigarettes from his breast pocket and lighting one, his hand shaking. He took a deep drag and held it in a moment before breathing the smoke out over the tiny garden. Harry stood in the doorway, frozen. Snape jumped a little, glancing over at Harry in surprise. He took another pull of his cigarette. Snape said at last, sounding a little lost. Harry crept forward to stand beside him. Snape shook his head a little, concentrating on garden. After a moment, Mr. Snape sat down next to him. Snape said, but he still sounded upset. Snape dropped the butt of his cigarette and ground it into the dirt. No, I did lose my temper. I â€” corrected him physically, too physically. And he was being really mean. Snape had done was made Dudley shut up and ordered him upstairs. Snape sighed again, shaking his head sadly. Then he stood and turned back toward the door. Take the two of you to the playground, maybe. Snape smiled, actually smiled for the first time since Harry had met him.

It is currently lunch, and I'm trying to look for a spot to eat. I feel like with each passing year, the cafeteria becomes more and more crowded. I wonder where all these people are coming from, I don't even think I've seen most of these people in my neighborhood before.

Without such documentation accurate coding cannot be achieved. The entire record should be reviewed to determine the specific reason for the encounter and the conditions treated. Narrative changes within the guidelines and this article appear in bold text. General Coding Guidelines I. As the list of diagnoses has continued to grow from when BMI and Pressure Ulcer Stages guidance first appeared in the Guidelines, it makes sense to change the section title. There are a few exceptions, such as codes for This section also includes new guidance specific to social determinants of health SDOH. The subsections in 1. Other codes may be applicable to the encounter based upon the documentation. Assign as many codes as necessary to fully explain each healthcare encounter. Since patient history information may be very limited, use any available documentation to assign the appropriate external cause of morbidity and Z codes. Chapter-Specific Coding Guidelines I. Sepsis Due to a Postprocedural Infection Updated New guidance has been added to 5 b Sepsis due to a postprocedural infection and 5 c Postprocedural infection and postprocedural septic shock. Assign an additional code for sepsis following a procedure T Use an additional code to identify the infectious agent. If the patient has severe sepsis, the appropriate code from subcategory R For infections following infusion, transfusion, therapeutic injection, or immunization, a code from subcategory T Do not assign code R Additional code s should be assigned for any acute organ dysfunction. Instead, assign a code s explaining the reason for the encounter such as fever, rash, or joint pain or Z For FY, instead of coding Z Current malignancy versus personal history of malignancy New to this section is the following guidance: Codes from subcategory Z Mental, Behavioral and Neurodevelopmental disorders FF99 5. Hypertension with Heart Disease Additional ICM codes classifying hypertension with heart conditions have been added. Do not assign a code I Codes from category I22 should only be assigned if both the initial and subsequent myocardial infarction are type 1 or unspecified. Drug use during pregnancy, childbirth and the puerperium In FY this section addressed alcohol and tobacco use during pregnancy, childbirth and the puerperium. This can involve illegal drugs, or inappropriate use or abuse of prescription drugs. Secondary code s from categories FF16 and FF19 should also be assigned to identify manifestations of the drug use. Symptoms, signs and abnormal clinical and laboratory findings, not elsewhere classified RR99 I. Injury, poisoning, and certain other consequences of external causes ST88 I. Burns of the same anatomic site This section has been retitled from Burns of the same local site to Burns of the same anatomic site for FY Further specificity has been added to this section as follow: Classify burns of the same anatomic site and on the same side but of different degrees to the subcategory identifying the highest degree records in the diagnosis e. Category T30, Burn and corrosion, body region unspecified is extremely vague and should rarely be used. Adult and child abuse, neglect and other maltreatment In addition to guidance about coding abuse, neglect, rape or sexual abuse the following paragraph has been added: BMI codes should only be assigned when the associated diagnosis such as overweight or obesity meets the definition of a reportable diagnosis. This article is meant as an overview, reading the Guidelines is a must for Coding and Clinical Documentation Improvement Professionals as you prepare for changes come October 1, Beth has over twenty-five years of experience in healthcare including eleven years in Case Management at a large multi-facility health system. Welcome back to the Wilde! Last time we had some forgotten birthdays, had our first experience with the new parenting system, and lost lots of points. Hopefully this chapter goes a little bit better than the last one! As always we begin with a Wilde check! Seriously have no idea where that random outfit came from! Breanna is grabbing a bite to eat Brenden is schmoozing for the camera. Then I remembered that I get more points for the aspiration completion, so we switched to bar tending. Do you think that if she was murdered, it counts as an accidental death? This is the worst. A shiny brand new save! And the kids are no longer stuck in limbo And Wesley and Shiew made the move with us! Yes, there was a little cheating involved. Good girl Breanna is working for that gold star and helping out around the house. This is a typical sight around our house. Does that make me a bad person? And then this! Ohhhh Bentley. You are steadily losing my favor. And we have an heir poll coming up soon. Well if you look closely, you can see that the focusing light have made their return! Started our first school project! And then Brooke happened. Her trait is active and her aspiration is Rambunctious scamp. And she started childhood out right and did her homework. I love those focusing lights. Arik and Cassandra are expecting! And so are Amberly and Jace! They make this thing called a shower. Join us next time for probably more loss of points and hopefully please god an heir poll!

I really want to continue sleeping. Mom already took my blanket from me. I quickly take a bath, have breakfast and went to school. I saw my boyfriend, Nick Dale at his locker. You just really hate those kind of things. At recess, I sit beside at the canteen with my best friend, Perrie. Nick and his best friend, Gary. I was in a rush today. I said while fake-smiling. I was going to walk at the road, I see no car so, I walk at the road while reading my book. Suddenly, I heard someone screaming. I ignored it, it was nothing. Suddenly, I saw a car almost getting near me but Nick push me to the sidewalk and he got hit by the car. I took out my beats by Dr, Dre and went to him. He was bleeding a lot. I cry a lot of tears. I hold his hand and kiss it. He closed his eyes. Every boy that was standing in my surrounding help him. My family and me went to the hospital. We went to his room. He was lying down on the bed. His forehead is full with bandages. His neck is broken. His left foot is broken. You need to be grateful that you still have a 2nd chance to change your life. Dales said and motivate too. I was staring at Nick non-stop. I followed mom and dad to the door. In the car, Mom: Why do you do this to me?? I thought you and Nick are just fine!!! She read a book and wear her stupid beats by Dr. Dre while crossing the road!!! All you care is your freaking money!!! How am I not mad if you change my good mood to bad????!! No more screaming Christine King!!!! Can you both Cut it out!!!! Fine When we arrived at home, I quickly went to my room. I crash to my bed. I took my pillow and cover it on my face. No one needs me. Suddenly, someone opens the door. Just leave me alone, okay! Mom went out from my room. I get up from my bed. I went to the bathroom to brush my teeth. After I brush my teeth, I saw the Fairytale Island book on my study table. I went to my study table. I took the book and throw it to the floor. Suddenly the thick beautiful book turn into brown and old. THE book also open by itself. I went to it. Suddenly a hand came out from the book. It was choking me and pulling me to get into the book.
