Summon Decreator to unmake the world. Their goal was to summon forth a being called the Decreator as a means to destroy everything, but to do so they had to wait for the Book of the Fifth Window to be born. The Book is a special child born with his skin almost completely tattooed in an unknown language. To find the child in the real world, the cult enters our world through a cut that magically appears on a person. The cut will continue to grow on the person until they are all cut. After turning fifteen, the cult managed to track him down in Barcelona, Spain; catching the attention of the Doom Patrol and self-said expert on the occult, Willoughby Kipling. The DP was unsuccessful in protecting the Book, which was read and revealed the Decreator into life. The Decreator started to erase things from existence slowly at first, giving Kipling and DP member Crazy Jane enough time to slow it down. It is the equal, opposite, and Shadow of God created when God uttered "Let there be light! It initially appeared as a giant, bloodshot eye in the sky. When it appears it makes the sky around break into pieces and the stars surrounding it blink out. It starts decreasing slowly, first words, then books, then shelves, then Libraries, etc. It was believed to be unstoppable and it possibly is, but it is possible to slow it down long enough for no one to notice what was going on. An entity of powers born out of the true, ultimate darkness, was born at the very same moment, and it came to be known as the Great Evil Beast or the Ultimate Darkness. The list of the cult agents go as followed: A group of assassins who dress in identical brown suits with identical pocket watches and identical blood stains on their shoulders. The difference is that they have stellar objects for heads. They wield sickles as weapons. Created from dead skin and love letters taken from romances that turned sour, they carry around hammers and exclamatory mark balloons. Kites made of the skin and bones of murder victims powered by poor souls captured by the cult. They can detect heartbeats. Wynken, Blynken, and Nod are three scouts for the cult. They appear as children on tricycles with gas masks. When they ride over people, the people become shadows. Floating white outlines of people which mumble in Japanese. They talk in anagrams and have bad body odors. A ghostly being who haunts the houses of unmarried women, whispering ingredients for unholy recipes. Beheaded and skinned bodies whose heads are replaced with blades. They graffiti odd slogans. Little Sisters of Our Lady of the Razor: Children drawn from the cult who want eternal youth. They are operated on to stay young; unfortunately, this requires painful mutilation. They dress like pseudo-style Klansmen and have squeaky voices. Skins kept together by baby pins who carry large forks. He acts strangely polite. Gallery Add a photo to this gallery Doom Patrol Villains.
