For the Cold Brew: Add the coffee grounds and stir with a wooden spoon so that all the coffee grounds are wet. Secure the jar with a lid and refrigerate for hours. After 24 hours, remove the jar and secure a piece of cheese cloth with a rubber band over the top of the open jar. Slowly pour the coffee through the cheesecloth and into a pitcher or other large beverage container. Discard coffee grounds and now you have cold brew! Prepare an iced drink now or store in the fridge for up to one week. Drizzle Torani white chocolate sauce inside of a large 16oz mason jar or glass. Add a handful of ice. Pour in 1 cup of cold brew. Add milk or cream to taste. Stir in 2 tbsp of Torani Tiramisu Syrup. I like Cinnamon Dolce coffee by Starbucks. Pour the cold water into a large jar or container with a lid. Add the coffee grounds to the container. Stir with a wooden spoon so that all the coffee grounds are wet. My girls love to help stir our drink recipes. After 24 hours, remove the jar and get a piece of cheesecloth and rubberbands out. Secure a piece of cheese cloth with a rubber band over the top of the open jar. Slowly pour the coffee through the cheesecloth and into a pitcher. Drizzle white chocolate sauce inside of a large 16oz mason jar or glass. Are you excited to try this amazing drink?! Add a straw and enjoy! What flavor syrups and sauces do you like in your coffee? Torani brand products have been provided at no cost to myself. As always, all opinions expressed in my post are my own.

Chapter 3 : For the Love of Coffee Basket

The coffee came with a pretentious timer so that when it rings, you can press the plunger down but the coffee was just as underwhelming. It tasted like instant coffee rather than real coffee. It tasted like instant coffee rather than real coffee.

It was not to be! Her sad, weeping eyes made it look like she was crying, and, of course, we instantly fell in love with her and wanted to protect her from the cold and lonely world. So now we had our first cow, and a new learning curve commenced. Coffee came to us as a day old calf. She was probably the most helpless and pathetic of all the orphans we had taken in. I think the idea of breeding livestock is to keep the fittest and cull the weakest, but we seem to just accumulate more of the sick and rejected and nurse them back to health. Our breeding stock gene pool may not be of the soundest quality. We were not cut out to be the kind of farmers who view animals as commodities! Yes, I am covered in calf snot, and loving every minute of it! She is extremely friendly. We cannot relocate her anywhere she cannot see the house. We tried to move her to another paddock. She refused to budge. So breathing in that unholy odour, struggling to propel her down the lane, covered in urine, fifteen minutes later we arrived, a little greener in the face and very much relieved. A little skin off of her legs for her trouble, but absolutely determined that she was not going to be removed from her home paddock. And to this day she lives with her lovely view of the house. Doo doo doo, looking in your back door Feeding Coffee whilst consuming coffee. Dan, the dog, looks on hoping something tasty will be coming his way too. Coffee at one year old. Looking good and finally gaining a little weight! She is on display on the front porch!
