First published on the web in , is the original 13 page version of the guide remains available as a free resource to guitar players old and new. The idea behind the guide is to cut through the confusion that often surrounds music theory and provide a means to apply practical music theory in the real world.

What guitar accessories do you need? White LESSON There are some guitar accessories that you are definitely going to need quite soon, and some optional things that simply make your life a little easier. In this lesson, I want to give you a little bit of advice regarding all these things. Picks You will need to buy a few picks. To start with you will need a few very thin picks get as thin as you can find. These thin picks will help you learn to strum well. Buy a few because the sock monster plays guitar and will steal them regularly! These Jim Dunlop Nylon picks are great for beginners. We also sell awesome branded picks on the justinguitarstore: Tuner It is essential to get your guitar in tune! You should learn to tune up yourself, without needing a tuner, but when you are starting out, it is better to be in tune - and having your guitar sound nice - than trying to learn how to tune, messing it up, and having your guitar sound horrible. Have mercy on those that will listen to you learning and buy yourself a tuner right away! Buy at the justinguitar store! Clip-ons are super convenient and this one is super accurate as good as the Peterson I used to use but lasts longer and is a much better, stronger design. Order some next time you buy some other stuff, and have at least two spare sets at home. What gauge strings I hear you ask? Most beginners play gauge for electric and gauge for acoustics. The thicker the strings the more they hurt your fingers, but they sound better. Strap Getting a strap is a very good idea. It helps keep the guitar stable and trains you up for when you want to go unleash your skills on the world. Strap Locks If you plan to stand up and use a strap on your guitar, then please buy some strap locks. These can range from plastic discs that cost very little, to big metal catches that you fix to your strap, which cost more. I have seen too many beginners without strap locks and seen guitars drop to the floor. I have actually seen three guitars snap necks because the strap fell off. The cheap ones work, so there is no excuse not to have these. Put it on the strap pin after you put the strap on. Metronome This one is important. You will use your metronome a lot. Go check it out, gets great reviews and really will be a big help on your journey. Korg MA If you still want to stay with a physical metronome, these are reliable, well made and easy to use and have a great feature set. Not the cheapest but often with stuff like this you buy cheap, you buy twice!! Capo A capo is a really cool device that you place on the guitar neck, and it changes the pitch of the open strings. They are used to change the key of a song, and will enable you to play along with songs that are otherwise very hard. If you sing, they are also useful to change the key of a song quickly to help you find the right key for your singing voice. Very well made too. Buy at the justinguitar store Justin Recommends: Really well made and easy on and off. Music Stand A music stand can save your back. If you have any posture problems, get a stand now! Many people sit on the bed or the sofa with sheet music next to them and twist around to see it, craning their neck to look at their fingers. This puts you on a sure-fire track to expensive chiropractic bill. Get a stand - they are not expensive and will make your practice time more comfortable. I use one called a RAT stand , and it looks super awesome, but they are pretty expensive. If you are a pro or have the money and wanna look cool, then these are the bomb! Some kinda wire music stand! Display Folder or folder on your computer! It really helps you learn fast if you keep your notes organised. I recommend buying a clear display folder or a ring binder to keep all your notes in and keep them organised. It really will help; it somehow keeps your head tidy if your notes are tidy. They are not expensive, so give it a go. Any Display Folder It is also a massive advantage when it comes to learning to improvise because one person can play chords while the other learns to take a solo, and then swap. It is also a very good thing to hear yourself back, so a recorder is a great thing to have even if you have a jam buddy. Very easy to use too so perfect for beginners to have fun with! Not essential for very beginners but will get more useful later in the course! So well worth a look at that as a compliment to your study on this course:
