

Chapter 1 : Tiny Tales: Hush, Little Alien - Clay Center

Hush, Little Alien This book for young children is a parody of the song "Hush, little baby", in which a Papa alien tells his child all the things he will get for them.

We love dress up at our house and preschool and this alien headband craft was created to use as a pretend play prop. I suggested my son glue eyes on the band but he was very adamant that they needed to be up high on antennae. Even though I have directions you can follow this is the sort of craft that is best used as inspiration for your own unique creation. You will need some paper, paint, glue, sparkly pipe cleaners, sticky back sparkly foam, googly eyes, tape and glitter! Start by having your child paint the paper. This will be cut in two strips to make the headband. I like using either a foam paint brush or paint markers like these when we want the paint to dry fast. While they paint, trace a circle 6 times on the backing of the sparkly foam. Glue the googly eyes on. Next cut the paper in half. Add glue and glitter. Trust me glitter is messy enough, but cleaning it out of scissors is no fun. Cut your pipe cleaners into different heights. When eyes are dry or at least dry enough not to slide, peel off the backing of the 3 foam circles that do not have googly eyes on them. Press the pipe cleaners into them. Peel the back off the circles with eyes, press into the circles with the pipe cleaners so they are sandwiched. You will want it near the end because you are going to tape the other strip on top to sandwich them. I like using tape for 2 reasons. Books The Way Back Home by Oliver Jeffers is a moving story about a boy, a martian and the moon they were both stuck on. Together they figure out a way to get back home even though they are so sad to say goodbye to each other. I love this author, I love his illustrations as well, they are so unique and the emotion he manages to convey is amazing. There is an illustration of the boy and martian standing awkwardly before they have to say goodbye and it embodies the emotion. Grab anything written by this author and you will be happy! Hush, Little Alien by Daniel Kirk is a quirky updated version of the classic lullaby. So many bedtime books are super sugary but this one is funky and bright! I love the space theme and the illustrations are great! Moon Man by Tomi Ungerer is an odd, heartwarming, entertaining story. My son loves this story about the man on the moon who wants to be a part of the action on earth and decides to visit himself. Of course as is the custom on earth we are afraid of outsiders and he is thrown in jail. Luckily as he goes through the phases he manages to slip out through the bars. He finds someone to help him return home where he belongs, even though he is sad to go. Share it with a friend!
