A white couple whose black babysitter was followed by a white woman and questioned by police said they were in disbelief about the incident. David Parker and Dana Mango of suburban Atlanta told.

Life and career – Bruce left the family, moving to California [10] and having two other children: In Missouri, they lived in several places, including St. Joseph, Savannah, and Kansas City. When Polkinghorn committed suicide in , Eminem stopped speaking for days and did not attend his funeral. When her son became famous, Debbie was unimpressed by suggestions that she was a less-than-ideal mother, contending that she sheltered him and was responsible for his success. In , Debbie allowed runaway Kimberly Ann "Kim" Scott to stay at their home; several years later, Eminem began an on-and-off relationship with Scott. Although he was interested in English, he never explored literature preferring comic books and disliked math and social studies. When she left to play bingo, he would blast the stereo and write songs. After they disbanded he joined Soul Intent, who released a single on their self-titled EP featuring Proof. The case was dismissed when the victim did not appear in court. I had, like, forty dollars to get her something. The character allowed him to express his anger with lyrics about drugs, rape, and murder. Iovine played the tape for record producer Dr. Dre, founder of Aftermath Entertainment and founding member of hip-hop group N. Dre recalled, "In my entire career in the music industry, I have never found anything from a demo tape or a CD. Although his associates criticized him for hiring a white rapper, he was confident in his decision: I had never seen stars let alone Dr. Baby One More Time for fastest-selling solo album. Although Eminem parodied shock rocker Marilyn Manson in the music video for "My Name Is", they are reportedly on good terms; Manson is mentioned in "The Way I Am", appeared in its music video and has performed a live remix of the song with Eminem. Eminem, under fire for homophobic lyrics, shared the stage with a gay icon for a performance of "Stan" that would have been memorable in any context. The Eminem Show was released in May. It was another success, reaching number one on the charts and selling over 1. Its sales were partially driven by the first single, "Just Lose It", which contained slurs about Michael Jackson. We want the pass back". So the irony of this situation with Michael is not lost on me. The song criticized President George W. Bush as "This weapon of mass destruction that we call our president", with lyrics including "Fuck Bush". When they break in, it is learned that they are there to register to vote; the video ends with "VOTE Tuesday November 2". Rumors began early in the year about a double album to be released late that year, entitled The Funeral; [63] the greatest hits album, entitled Curtain Call: The Hits, was released in December. In July the Detroit Free Press reported a possible final bow for Eminem as a solo performer, quoting members of his inner circle as saying that he would embrace the roles of producer and label executive. The day of Curtain Call: Denying that he was retiring, he suggested he would take a break as an artist: The Re-Up on Shady Records. In August he canceled the European leg of the tour, later announcing that he had entered drug rehabilitation for treatment of a "dependency on sleep medication". The Hits was released December 6, by Aftermath Entertainment. It feels good right now, the energy of the label. I went through some personal things. We are up to our old mischievous ways Relapse, the first, was released on May 19; its first single and music video, "We Made You", had been released on April 7. It sold more than five million copies worldwide. He landed buttocks-first on Eminem, who stormed out of the ceremony; three days later, Eminem said that the stunt had been staged. On November 19, he announced on his website that Relapse: Refill would be released on December. The album was a re-release of Relapse with seven bonus tracks, including "Forever" and "Taking My Ball". Eminem described the CD: I want to deliver more material for the fans this year like I originally planned. Hopefully these tracks on The Refill will tide the fans over until we put out Relapse 2 next year. I got back in with Dre and then a few more producers, including Just Blaze, and went in a completely different direction which made me start from scratch. The new tracks started to sound very different than the tracks I originally intended to be on Relapse 2, but I still want the other stuff to be heard. Although his followers thought he was not releasing an album, he had changed its title to Recovery and confirmed this by tweeting "RECOVERY" with a link to his website. I had originally planned for Relapse 2 to come out last year. But as I kept recording and working with new producers, the idea of a sequel to Relapse started to make less and less sense to me, and I wanted to make a completely new album. The music on Recovery came out very different from Relapse, and I think it deserves its own title. Recovery remained atop the Billboard chart for five consecutive weeks of a seven-week total. B and Keyshia Cole. Later that year, he performed at the Activision E3 concert. The first two concerts quickly sold out, prompting an additional show in each city. Unlike the original, Rihanna is the lead vocalist and it is sung from the female perspective. Dre and Skylar Grey. The Sequel, was released on June 14, The Sequel in a month period. The Marshall Mathers LP 2 Eminem announced on May 24, , that he was working on his next album, [] scheduled for release the following year. Three more singles followed: Its standard version had 16 tracks, and the deluxe version included a second disc with five additional tracks. The first American artist with seven consecutive UK number-one albums, he is tied with The Beatles for second place for the most consecutive chart-topping UK albums. The album debuted at number three on the Billboard chart, with first-week sales of , copies in the United States. The Re-Up, and the greatest hits collection Curtain Call: Eminem is the executive producer of the soundtrack on the sports drama Southpaw, with Shady Records. The interview streamed online on the Beats 1 radio on [] July 1, Eminem appeared on the public access show Only in Monroe, produced in Monroe, Michigan, and was interviewed by guest host Stephen Colbert for an episode that aired July 1, The True Story of Infinite. In the song, Eminem calls the newly elected President Donald Trump a "bitch", and also raps about raping conservative social and political commentator Ann Coulter, who is a Trump supporter, with a variety of foreign objects.

Dick Brewer , c. The three men had wielded an economic and political hold over Lincoln County since the early s, due in part to their ownership of a beef contract with nearby Fort Stanton and a well-patronized dry goods store in Lincoln. Tunstall put Bonney in charge of nine prime horses and told him to relocate them to his ranch for safekeeping. During the encounter, one member of the posse shot Tunstall in the chest, knocking him off his horse. Baker and Morton were killed while trying to escape. Hindman , were killed. Battle of Lincoln On the night of Sunday, July 14, McSween and the Regulators – now a group of fifty or sixty men – went to Lincoln and stationed themselves in the town among several buildings. Another group led by Marin Chavez and Doc Scurlock positioned themselves on the roof of a saloon. Peppin then sent a request for assistance to Colonel Nathan Dudley , commandant of nearby Fort Stanton. In a reply to Peppin, Dudley refused to intervene but later arrived in Lincoln with troops, turning the battle in favor of the Murphy-Dolan faction. Bonney and the other men fled the building when all rooms but one were burning. Beckwith, who was then shot and killed by Bonney. All four were indicted for the murder, despite conflicting evidence that Bernstein had been killed by Constable Atanacio Martinez. Antrim, alias Kid, alias Bonny [sic]" but was unable to execute them "owing to the disturbed condition of affairs in that county, resulting from the acts of a desperate class of men". It specifically excluded persons who had been convicted of or indicted for a crime, and therefore excluded Bonney. According to eyewitnesses, the pair were innocent bystanders forced at gunpoint by Jesse Evans to witness the murder. On March 15, Governor Wallace replied, agreeing to a secret meeting to discuss the situation. Bonney met with Wallace in Lincoln on March 17, During the meeting and in subsequent correspondence, Wallace promised Bonney protection from his enemies and clemency if he would offer his testimony to a grand jury. Bonney escaped from the Lincoln County jail on June 17, The origin of the difficulty was not learned. He walked up to Grant, told him he admired his revolver, and asked to examine it. Grant handed it over. Before returning the pistol, which Bonney noticed contained only three cartridges, he positioned the cylinder so the next hammer fall would land on an empty chamber. When it failed to fire, Bonney drew his own weapon and shot Grant in the head. A reporter for the Las Vegas Optic quoted Bonney as saying the encounter "was a game of two and I got there first". Carlyle offered to exchange places with Greathouse, and Bonney accepted the offer. Carlyle later attempted to escape by jumping through a window but he was shot three times and killed. The shoot-out ended in a standoff; the posse withdrew and Bonney, Rudabaugh, and Wilson rode away. Unknown to Bonney and his companions, a posse led by Pat Garrett was waiting for them. When they arrived on December 26, they were met by crowds of curious onlookers. The following day, an armed mob gathered at the train depot before the prisoners, who were already on board the train with Garrett, departed for Santa Fe. Garrett refused to surrender the prisoner, and a tense confrontation ensued until he agreed to let the sheriff and two other men accompany the party to Santa Fe, where they would petition the governor to release Rudabaugh to them. On the evening of April 28, , while Garrett was in White Oaks collecting taxes, Deputy Bob Olinger took five other prisoners across the street for a meal, leaving James Bell, another deputy, alone with Bonney at the jail. Bonney asked to be taken outside to use the outhouse behind the courthouse; on their return to the jail, Bonney – who was walking ahead of Bell up the stairs to his cell – hid around a blind corner, slipped out of his handcuffs, and beat Bell with the loose end of the cuffs. Bonney waited at the upstairs window for Olinger to respond to the gunshot that killed Bell and called out to him, "Look up, old boy, and see what you get". When Olinger looked up, Bonney shot and killed him. The first bullet struck Bonney in the chest just above his heart, killing him. Ritch, the acting New Mexico governor, refused to pay the reward. Most of these claims were easily disproven but two have remained topics of discussion and debate. In , a central Texas man Ollie P. This was unsupported by his family until , some time after his death. The image shows Bonney wearing a vest over a sweater, a slouch cowboy hat, and a bandanna, while holding an Winchester rifle with its butt resting on the floor. For years, this was the only photograph scholars and historians agreed showed Bonney. This led historians to believe he was left-handed, but they did not take into account that the ferrotype process produces reversed images. Horan and Paul Sann wrote that Bonney was "right-handed and carried his pistol on his right hip". If authentic it is the only known photo of Billy the Kid and the Regulators together and the only image to feature their wives and female companions. McCubbin and outlaw historian John Boessenecker concluded in that the photograph does not show Bonney. Kent Gibson, a forensic video and still image expert, offered the services of his facial recognition software, and stated that Bonney is one of the individuals in the image. A photograph curator at the Palace of the Governors archives, Daniel Kosharek, said the image is "problematic on a lot of fronts", including the small size of the figures and the lack of resemblance of the background landscape to Lincoln County or the state in general. As a result of his efforts, a stone memorial marked with the names of the three men and their death dates beneath the word "Pals" was erected in the center of the burial area. New Mexico Governor Bruce King arranged for the county sheriff to fly to California to return it to Fort Sumner, [] where it was reinstalled in May. Although both markers are behind iron fencing, a group of vandals entered the enclosure at night in June and tipped the stone over. Unsourced material may be challenged and removed.
