Email In this acrylic painting art lesson, we will visit artists who mainly paint farm animals. Each style of these artists is different. Visit each style of painting and see how you can create simple yet attractive. Each of these artists has a style of their own but what they all create are cute, expressive animals like chicken, cows, pigs, sheep and other farm animals. Peter Diem is the dutch artist who painted lively, colorful pictures of Dutch cows. He used thick paints, sometimes directly from his tubes onto the canvas and uses his brush, knife, and sometimes fingers to apply them. Diem was inspired by the CoBrA group of artists. The styles of these artists are abstract and expressive. Objective We will paint the cow in acrylic by painting the negative space. Process We will use a canvas sheet to paint as we will apply thick paints. After applying a layer of paints, we let the colors dry. Then draw the cow on the canvas with a chalk. Paint the negative space with white to highlight the cow. Apply more paints on the cow to make it look colorful. You can outline the cow with black paint at the end. Try this technique multiple times and get different outcomes with this style. Other than painting cows, you can try other farm animals and birds. Hans Innemee Hans Innemee is a dutch artist who creates his art in a style called monotype. The artist first applies the paint on a glass in a pattern and then the paper printed with the pattern by pressing the paper against the plate. The paper gets a texture which is difficult to get otherwise. Hans uses oil paints and oil sticks to create his art. Objective Learn a new technique called monotype to create your art. Here we are also using soft pastels on acrylic. Process This style should be fast as the print has to transferred before the paint dries. So create simple but attractive images of pigs, cows, chicken, elephants. Draw farm animals or birds as it is drawn here. We will try the monotype technique. We will use acrylic paint. Since acrylic paints dry fast we will add retarder with the paint to slow the process. Apply some black paint on the glass plate. Then take a tissue paper, place it on the plate and draw your image. I took a simple kitchen tissue paper. Press the paper with your fingers to transfer the paint. You can repeat the process using other colors. Paint the background with the color of your choice on a normal sheet of paper and paste this tissue upside down on the paper with mod podge. Let the glue dry. Use soft pastels to the applied area to highlight your image. Here are some of Hans Innemee paintings. He uses oil sticks on his animals and chooses colors like white, red and yellow. Choose your colors and definitely try this technique. It is really fun and gives an unique finish. Annie Lane One of the very first art lessons on acrylic for kids should be inspired by Annie Lane. The happy and fun animals cover the whole drawing area and look straight out of the canvas as if they are ready to speak to the audience. Annie Lane is a self-taught artist from the USA. She experimented with her work and created her unique style. She focuses on flat and bold colors and characters. Her palette is restricted and she creates darker shades of her colors by mixing them with black. Then draw your own animals. Create the tones of the paints by mixing them with gray. Process Since acrylic is an opaque medium, we will paint one layer above the other. First, color the background. Then try out brush strokes with slightly lighter tint. Draw the main character. Color them with thick colors. Make prominent wide eyes of the characters.

Chapter 3 : Learn to Draw Farm Animals

Learn to Draw Farm Animals. Kids can learn to draw a cat with our fun printable step by step guide. Look at the shapes and placement, and then copy along!

Farm animals are everywhere: In this section, I will show you how to determine what are the physical uniqueness of each animal and how to work with them. Then, you can practice drawing each cartoon character using basic shapes. You will have the opportunity to make nice illustrations, practice sketching and cartooning using short easy lessons and complete your creation using a drawing software to create vector art if you want to! Cartoon drawing is really fun once you get into it! This method is really simple, but requires practice and observation. So, sit back and relax. Learn how to draw animals from the farm and start your journey on a good note! A cute turkey to begin with In this first tutorial, you can learn how to draw a fun turkey mostly made from small rectangles and large circular shapes. The posture of the character is really interesting. The fact that we just need to draw one wing is also interesting. Most of these cartoon animals are not filled with complex textures or digital effects. In this case, the subject is filled with plain colors and only a few basic details inside the tail were added. A nice turtle also from a side view This basic animal is also interesting to work with. The body is made from a portion of an oval shape and the head is drawn using a weird curved line. Patches on the shell are pretty much all the same except for this cool distortion effect. Legs are short and the tip is made from curved lines too. You can have a lot of fun with a character like this one. A fun dog mostly made from rectangles Look at the final illustration from the dog tutorial. See how the dog looks calm and adorable since it is mostly drawn using long and perfect curved lines? Well, the funny thing is that this cartoon animal was built mostly with rectangles and squares. Also note are both pupils are very close to each other in the colored version. Instead, you must move both pupils towards the middle of the eyes to end up with an adorable character. I also like this great cartoon mosquito for the large eyes that we can see on top of the head of the character. Rarely can you see cartoon animals that are made from eyes that are larger than the head! For this drawing lesson, be prepared to sketch a lot of circles and oval shapes! This lesson is slightly more complex than all previous ones. Indeed, the area near the head and the face can be pretty busy in some of these steps. The nose, the eyes, the cheeks, the pupils and the collar are all elements that must be drawn properly if you want to end up with a terrifying bulldog like the one found below. Drawing angry cartoon animals also mean that you will have to work with a lot of squares and rectangles. For this bulldog, a few sharp triangles are also required on the collar! This one is pretty interesting. You can see that you can create perspective only by placing the back legs slightly higher and more on the left compared to the front ones. No need to change anything else on the body or the head to get the desired effect. Even more interesting is the fact that only two large circles for the body and the head and two small ones for the eyes are required to create the animal. All four legs are made from a tiny rectangle. The cutest chicken possible! This little shape contains two dots for the eyes, two small oval shapes to represent the beak and a few curved lines to create the wing. Some hair is visible on top of the character as well as behind it. Only the legs are slightly more challenging to draw. Ready for more cartoon animals? All previous lessons were just a few examples of what to expect from cartoon animals found in this series. You will have the opportunity to work with a few farm animals and insects that are made from simple elements and mostly filled with plain colors. You can either try to create new characters or simply modify the ones found below using your own style.
