

Chapter 1 : Home - Lakewood Country Club

Private Country Club located in Lakewood, Colorado. Featuring 18 hole Donald Ross Designed golf course. Clubhouse offers indoor & outdoor dining, locker rooms, pro shop, banquet event space, swimming pool, and fitness facility.

The green slopes hard back to front, so keep your approach shot below the hole. Favor the right side of fairway to avoid the water on the left. It requires a forced carry, over water, to a green that is well protected by bunkers. The green is two tiered and receptive. Here, long is better than short. A well-placed drive will leave the player with a short approach to a green that slopes severely back to front. Keep the ball below the hole! To shorten the hole, move your tee shot left to right. Stronger players can carry the dogleg. Your approach will most likely be played from an uneven lie to a green protected by two bunkers. The tee ball is paramount to scoring well on this par 4. Better players can carry the left bunker; however, most should favor the right. Thick trees line the left side and are to be avoided at all costs. From the tee, play short of the fairway bunker located on the outside of the dogleg. This is a good hole for scoring well. More seasoned players can reach it in two. From the tee, avoid the trouble left and favor center to right. In the landing area, the hole turns 90 degrees to the left. The lay-up area and green are well-bunkered. Favor the left on approach, as shots lost to the right could find a watery grave in Lake Bouton.

Succeed and you will be left with a mid to short iron onto this ample green. Avoid the deep bunker fronting the right side. Take plenty of club from the tee to get it on the green. The green breaks less than it appears, so play all putts a little straighter. Hit driver as far as you can, avoiding the bunker on the left. Second shot should hug the left avoiding bunkers on the right. Second shot will be a long to mid-iron onto a well-protected green. Use enough club to clear the front bunker. The green slopes back to front, so be careful with downhill putts. The putting surface is undulated with many tricky hole-location options. Pin in the back? Play to the front. Two putts is a good thing here. Plan your tee shot to leave your favorite distance to this small green. Favor the right side of the green for your approach as all shots will release left. Careful with the first putt, this green yields a lot of 3 putts. Hit the driver as far as you can and you might be able to get home in two. Otherwise lay up short of the creek and try to make par with a one putt. Be sure to miss the greenside bunkers and play to the middle of this large green. Take your 2 putts and move on. Favor the left side on your tee shot to avoid the bunkers on the right. The approach shot will play slightly uphill. Have enough club to clear the deep bunkers fronting this green. All putts break from the back of the green to the front. Par is a good score. Favor the right side off the tee to avoid the lakes left. Second shot that avoids bunkers on each side of fairway puts you in position to get to the green. One of the largest greens and among the most severe, it slopes back to front. Be sure your first putt gets close, enabling you to close the first nine with another par. The second shot is a long to mid iron a bit shorter than the yardage. Better a little short as most shots will bounce on. Two putts will get you started on a great second 9. A good tee shot lands in the middle of the fairway as far as you can get it. Decision before the second shot is to go for the green or layup. A very benign looking green, but be careful. There is more slope from back to front than is apparent, so be cautious with downhill putts. Off the tee must be in the fairway to give you a any chance to get to this green. The second shot plays a little downhill but depends of the wind. The front bunker is not good. The green is predictable and two putts end the toughest stretch on the course with a good par. Just hit it straight and avoid the bunker front right and left. Club selection is critical. Shots hit to the back of the green will end up in back bunker. Once on the green remember that the front half slopes severely to the front. A layup results in a short iron onto this big green. Avoid the swale on the left if the hole location is right or back. Stay short of the large cross bunker on the right. The approach plays a club longer because it is uphill as well. This is a small green protected in front by a large bunker. Get it on in regulation and par should not be a problem. If you hit it well, on your second shot you can clear the creek that runs across the fairway. Otherwise, layup to the end of the fairway for a yard uphill shot to the green, the shallowest on the course. Choose your club wisely. This green slopes from back to front. Club selection is critical on this downhill shot. The bunker behind the green almost guarantees bogey or worse. If the hole location is on the right side, aim for the middle. If you come up short, par is still a possibility. Avoid the big bunker right side of fairway. Second shot is also uphill. Bunkers on right and left of the green make it a tough shot. On the green allow for a fairly severe slope from back to front. Par will probably win the press.
