

Chapter 1 : Lily Tomlin - Wikipedia

Nomination of Tom Lilley: hearing before the Committee on Banking and Currency, United States Senate, Eighty-ninth Congress, first session, on the nomination of Tom Lilley to be a member of the Board of Directors of the Export-Import Bank of Washington, September 23,

Signed as a replacement for the departing Judy Carne , Tomlin was an instant success on the already established program, in which in addition to appearing in general sketches and delivering comic gags, she began appearing as the regular characters she created; they became well known and she portrayed them outside of the show in later recordings and television specials: Ernestine was a nosy, condescending telephone operator who generally treated customers with little sympathy. Ernestine often snorted when she let loose a barbed response or heard something salacious; she also wore her hair in a s hairstyle with a hairnet, although the character was contemporary. Her opening lines were often the comical "one ringy dingy She occasionally called her boyfriend, Vito, a telephone repair man, or her pal Phoenicia, another operator. Edith Ann is a precocious five-and-a-half-year-old girl who waxes philosophical on everyday life, either about life as a kid or things for which she feels she has the answers, although she is too young to fully understand. Edith Ann has an oversized, playfully aggressive dog named Buster and a boyfriend named Junior Phillips, a possibly unrequited love. Tomlin voiced her in two prime-time cartoon adaptations of the character that aired on ABC in Judith Beasley is a housewife and mother from Calumet City, Illinois , who is often chosen for television commercials and offers "good consumer advice". Earbore The Tasteful Lady is a somewhat prudish and prissy, conservatively dressed middle-aged apolitical woman who dispenses advice on gracious living and a life of elegance. Humorless and melodramatic, her biggest worries are the likes of who took her missing album by The Carpenters. The Consumer Advocate Lady is a dour, austere woman who rigidly inspects and tests products for their alleged value. The Consumer Advocate Lady is something of a variation of Mrs. Tomlin performed this character as part of her Laugh-In audition. She often dispenses advice. In , she premiered Pervis Hawkins, a black rhythm-and-blues soul singer patterned after Luther Vandross , with a mustache, beard, and close-cropped afro hairstyle, dressed in a three-piece suit. Tomlin used very little, if any, skin-darkening cosmetics as part of the character, instead depending on stage lighting to create the effect. She appeared as three of her minor characters in a ad campaign for Fidelity Investments that did not include Ernestine and Edith Ann. The album hit 15 on the Billboard Hot , becoming and remaining as of [update] the highest-charting album ever by a solo comedienne. Tomlin has two of the three top charting female comedy albums on Billboard, sandwiching a Joan Rivers release. Each of these albums earned Tomlin additional Grammy nominations. The Oscar that year went to Lee Grant for her role in Shampoo. In , Tomlin co-starred in 9 to 5 , in which she played a secretary named Violet Newstead who joins coworkers Jane Fonda and Dolly Parton in seeking revenge on their boss, Franklin M. Tomlin starred in the science fiction comedy, The Incredible Shrinking Woman , a send-up of consumerism, and was the sickly heiress in the comedy, All of Me , opposite Steve Martin. Tomlin and Bette Midler played two pairs of identical twins who were switched at birth in the comedy, Big Business. Tomlin performed in two films by director David O. In March , two videos were leaked onto YouTube portraying on-set arguments between Russell and Tomlin, in which among other things he called her sexist names. There was a lot of pressure in making the movieâ€”even the way it came out you could see it was a very free-associative, crazy movie, and David was under a tremendous amount of pressure. She played Rhonda Johnson, one-half of a middle-aged Midwestern singing duo partnered with Meryl Streep. Her solo show then toured the country and was made into a record album titled On Stage. The show won her a Tony Award and was made into a feature film in Tomlin revived the show for a run on Broadway in which then toured the country through mid In , she won the Sarah Siddons Award for her work in Chicago theatre. It was her first appearance in that city, though she did tape an Emmy-winning TV special, a spoof of Las Vegas called Lily: Return to television[edit] Tomlin in Tomlin voiced Ms. She appeared on the dramatic series The West Wing for four years â€” in the recurring role of presidential secretary Deborah Fiderer.
