

Chapter 1 : Licensure Examination for Teachers (LET) Final Tips - christian

Before the examination day, it is best for you to practice a sample answer sheet for that you can condition your mind on how does thing goes. So, we have here a sample answer sheet that you can download and print.

Answering the actual board exams is another. After long sleepless nights of eyebrow burning during your review, your date with the board exams has finally come. It is a day most people are dreading. But for some people who are confident and have painstakingly prepared on how to go about in the actual board exams, this day is their milestone. The first was the Licensure Examination for Architects in June where I placed 1st with a grade of  $\frac{90}{100}$ . The most recent was the Licensure Examination for Environmental Planners this June where I placed 4th with a grade of  $\frac{85}{100}$ . Given my experience in taking board examinations, I would like to share with you, in my own little way, how I did it. In this article, you will find pointers and pieces of advice that would help you prepare for exam day. It is my hope that as you read along you will gain confidence, study vigorously and be inspired even more to reach your dreams of passing and hopefully topping the board exams. Every word that appears in the question that you read serves as clues to the right answer. During the exam, you will encounter questions wherein you will not be able to recall the word-by-word definition as taken from the book or reviewer. If this happens and I am sure it will happen frequently, you would then have to rely on analyzing the meaning of the question being asked based on the words that you see. The higher your comprehension of what is being asked or defined, the higher your chances of getting the answer correctly. There are several ways to improve your reading comprehension. These need not be lifeless and boring like memorizing the encyclopedia or the dictionary. Try to grab your favorite magazine or a newspaper once in a while and read some articles found in there. It can be about fashion, cars, current events, show business, music, games—whatever your interest is. The point here is to immerse yourself on trying to understand whatever it is that you read. Also, you can increase your vocabulary by playing games like crossword puzzles, boggle, hangman, scrabble, etc. I have stressed in my previous article the importance of being physically prepared in your review. The same thing goes for during the exam itself. If you are itching to do a last-minute study or browsing of notes, I suggest you do it the next morning before you go to the exam venue. Attend to your personal needs before the examination begins. Depending on the strictness of the assigned proctors, you are not allowed to go out of the room once the exam has started. So watch what you eat and drink. You are, however, allowed to bring food and drinks and consume them while taking the exams. I strongly recommend that you bring something that is just light for your stomach and something that is not too messy, noisy, or smelly to eat. During the examination, you should be ready for long hours of thinking and answering. Depending on the subject, board exams usually last from 3 hours to as long as 6 hours even 9 hours for design subjects. Be prepared for uncomfortable seats like drafting table chairs with no backrests or wooden armchairs with no cushions. While answering, take some 2-minute rests once in a while to recharge your mind and body. Doing a little stretching or closing your eyes for a few minutes might also help. Just as much as your physical condition is important in the board exams so are your mental and emotional states. Do not let pressure and nervousness control you. You must be able to control them. The board exam is like a war and you will be going into battle. You have to release that warrior instinct in you and own the examination. More people with positive mental attitudes succeed in life than people who are pessimistic. Declare that you are going to win and that nothing can stop you from doing so. We would have prepared a lot, read volumes of books from cover to cover, and memorized tons of formula, tables and data, and still would not be contented about it. Do not expect that everything you have read and studied in your review will come out in the exam. Of course, the only way to increase the percentage of questions you hope will come out is to also increase your time reviewing, reading, and researching for board exam topics. That means the less time and effort you exerted in preparing for the board exams, the less chances of you knowing what the question is all about. Consequently, this is where your reading comprehension skills come in handy. Once you have shaded an answer, you cannot change it and pick another one. Erasing a previously shaded answer will still leave spots of lead on the paper. This means that when your answer sheet is processed by the machine, it will detect two answers and will automatically mark that item wrong. This is the very reason why I do not recommend using your answer sheets immediately. This method is prone to errors and is very risky since you are already finalizing your answers without even seeing the rest of the questions which might give additional hints or clues. I know an examinee that has had a very bad experience with this. He was directly shading answers on his answer sheet as he reads a question on his questionnaire. The problem started when he skipped a question he does not know say, Question He proceeded to the next one Question 11 but subconsciously shaded 10 in the answer sheet. It went on for about 15 more items before he realized he was shading the wrong numbers! The best way to avoid these kinds of errors is to use your questionnaires as your temporary answer sheets first and then transfer them later. I usually allot one 1 hour for the transferring and final checking of my answers as I will be discussing in Tip 5. You are allowed to write on your questionnaires. In fact, PRC would even advise you to use your questionnaires as your scratch papers. Write down notes and tables, encircle or underline important words, cross out choices you think does not belong, etc. First order of business is to know which subjects you are going to tackle on which time or days. PRC releases an exam schedule alongside the syllabus of the subjects in your particular licensure examination. For example, in the recently held Licensure Examination for Environmental Planners, the exams were to be held in two days. Day 1 covers one subject i. This subject is scheduled from 8: Day 2, on the other hand, covers two subjects. The first subject i. Having known the number of hours allotted, the next step is to try to know the number of questions or items for each subject. In the example above, the Day 1 subject of Environmental Planning Processes, Methods, and Strategies consists of questions. With 6 hours allotted for this subject, I first subtract an hour for transferring of answers see Tip 4. This gives me 5 hours to answer a total of questions and 1 hour for transferring and finalizing my answers. So the rate in which I have to answer is given at questions per minutes. Simplifying, this means I have 1 minute and 30 seconds to answer one question in my Day 1 subject. The same formula goes for the other subjects. In the same example above, the first subject in Day 2 i. With 3 hours allotted for this subject, I subtract an hour for transferring of answers. This gives me 2 hours to answer a total of questions. Simplifying, this means I have 1 minute and 12 seconds to answer one question in my Day 2 subject. Another very important thing to remember is that each question, regardless of its difficulty, is just worth 1 point. So, I strongly recommend that you answer the easier questions first. If you do not know the answer or you are having difficulties deciding which among the choices to pick, just skip it immediately and proceed to the next item. You must not waste too much time thinking and fishing for an answer on a very difficult question. You will be going back to it later after you have read all the others. This is a very good strategy because sometimes there are questions or choices similar to the one you are having trouble with that would help you get to the right answer see example in Tip 7. Keep track of your time by wearing a wrist watch not a cellular phone since you would have to turn this off and surrender to the proctors. Do not be forced to finish your exam early just because other examinees are finishing their exams way ahead of everyone else. You will encounter in your classroom these kinds of examinees that will stand up and submit their answer sheets just one or two hours after the exam has started. You mind your own exam. You do not get additional points for finishing first. So make the most out of your time by double-checking and triple-checking your answers in your questionnaire until you are satisfied before transferring them to your answer sheet as your final answers. For ease of checking, questions are now prepared with multiple choices. This modernization of the board exam has actually made your lives much easier in so far as getting an answer correctly. Multiple-choice questions, usually with 4 choices A, B, C or D , give you a higher probability of getting a right answer than identification questionsâ€” simply because the answer is already there â€” you just have to pick it. Practice the art of elimination to increase this probability especially for questions you do not know. Here is an example of a question I have encountered in the board exam in which I do not know the exact answer but was able to figure out by means of elimination: Frank Lloyd Wright c. Mario Botta From the question, we already know that we are looking for an architect who was born in Switzerland. Having eliminated choice B, my probability of getting a right answer increased from 1: I then continued analyzing my three remaining choices. I then remembered one magazine article I read regarding the works of this Santiago Calatrava.

Chapter 2 : TIPS: How To Fill Out The PRC LET Answer Sheet - LET EXAM - Questions & Answers

â€¢ Check if the Serial Number of Examinee Identification Sheet/Answer Sheets are the same for all the sheets. If there is any discrepancy, return the set to your Room Watchers for replacement.

Once they pass the board exam, they can already teach in public schools. The license will also serve as their ticket for employment in government offices. And our final coaching tips! Use common sense to answer questions. Do not overreact, over-solve and over-analyze problems. LET questions, just like any other ordinary question, are simple. All questions have answers. There is no instruction like that unless PRC comes up with a new set of directions. Get the nearest choice to the answer if you find a question very mysterious. Never believe in what past takers say about the things what to expect. Personally, I was disappointed because the things I was told to expect did not come out during the exam. LET questions are not all from what our Education teachers have taught us. Some are from the lessons our teachers in Kindergarten have given us. Others are from the folk tales of our grannies when we were teenagers. Practice how to shade using a pencil. This is very crucial. Grab a thick paper and a pencil, and practice shading. Do not review the night before the board exam. Start relaxing two days before the exam. Go out with your friends. When answering LET questions, answer questions that are short and simple before proceeding to long and tough items. If you think you cannot answer an item, simple move on the next item. Do not spend more than two minutes of your precious time on just one item. Do not eat strange foods days before you take the exam. You might get very nervous before or while answering questions. Remember, nervousness is caused by lack of confidence. Lack of confidence is caused by the feeling that you did not review well. You cannot answer all questions correctly. You cannot review everything. You cannot prepare all the things you want to prepare. So two days before the exam, clean up your desk whether you think you are done with the review or not. Treat LET as an ordinary exam, because it is! LET becomes simple once you believe that you have already reviewed. God will never answer any of the LET questions for you. He will just guide you. So keep reviewing, we have days to go before the big day!

Eng After four to six months of rigorous and painstaking preparations in your review, whether you take a self-study review method or you had enrolled in a civil engineering review center of your choice; this is the time for you to take the actual board examinations. I had just compiled these reminders according to what I had experience when I review in Manila for a decade. I hope these reminders help reviewees and students to prepare early during review and on anticipating exam problems. Just follow these simple reminders. You had finished concluding on what you had reviewed. Room assignment will be posted at the premises of the Professional Regulations Commission PRC or you may check the PRC website two to three days before the first day of examination. Double-check your requirements most especially your calculator. You must bring at least 2 calculators for assurance and as a safety precaution as well. Prepare the PRC requirements to bring on the actual board exams and the proper attire. You may visit this post: Visit your school and building assignment prior to the day of the examinations. Bring your Notice of Admission when you verify your school and building assignment. Things to do in the Nights before the actual board exams: Pray to GOD to give you strength, patience, wisdom and common sense during the actual board exams. Relax and avoid cramming. To boost your self-confidence d. Have a positive attitude: Try to keep your normal eating and sleeping habits the day before the exam. More tips about proper eating habits at: Take your supplements as well. Eat a bar of chocolate whatever brand you prefer before you enter your room assignment; it is intended so that you stay alert and awake. Do not rely on last minute tips or leakage. They are early blank bullets. Matulog na lang kayo! Have a very good night sleep. For more detailed instruction during exams, please visit this link on my blog: Anticipate traffic even at dawn. So leave home early to be on time. Late examinees will not be admitted. But you must keep your composure and calmness. Take a deep breath, relax and say to pray to GOD: Be courteous, polite and helpful. Leave your bags outside the classroom or at the back of the examination hall. The proctor will guide you. Upon entering the classroom, present your Notice of Admission and other requirements to the proctor. When you receive your test paper, silence must be observed. Check if the pages of the test paper are complete. If not, please notify immediately the proctor. Before you start answering the questions, please allow more than three 3 minutes to write all the formulas that you fear to forget. Next is browse the entire questionnaire, check how many questions are there and many pages and try to budget your time. Read and understand all the questions carefully, most especially the tricky ones. If a question is unclear, answer the way you understand it. The proctor cannot interpret it for you. You cannot ask your seat mate. In shading your answers: Just keep your Answer Sheet clean and free from undue marking, unnecessary folds or stains. Just keep it neat and clean. Just relax and take a deep breath. Just go back to the problem again if you have time. Take note that in every CE subject, there are problems so you must answer a problem within 3 minutes or less. Look at all the choices you know you are wrong. When you sharpen your pencils, have a receptacle for the residues honed out. Never look at other examinees answer. In case you run out of time, make smart guesses. This will be easy since the type of exam is a multiple choice type. There shall be no borrowing of erasers, pencils, sharpeners, calculators and other examination requirements from any examinee. Just check your work if you finished answering all the questions before you pass the answer sheet to the proctor. When you are finished answering your examination papers, please: After your papers are submitted, sign on the appropriate form. Leave the venue and proceed out quietly. There should be no loitering and discussion in the examination premises. Never discuss answers after every examination with other examinees. Masisira ang momentum mo pag nakinig ka sa iba! Just remember and have an attitude, Tama ang sagot ko! Just believe you had correct answers. Just relax or take a rest while waiting for the results. Usually it takes 3 working days to release the actual results in the PRC website. Pray for Divine Assistance. Invoke the presence of God all throughout the examination. Just pray, pray and pray!!! May God Bless you in passing your exams! Just Bring Home the Bacon!
