No charges were filed against Newman, who said he shot Hill because he brandished a handgun. Read the verdict forms Mascara applauded the verdict, saying, "Newman was placed in a very difficult situation and like so many fellow law enforcement officers must do every day, he made the best decision he could for the safety of his partner, himself and the public given the circumstances he faced. The jury consisted of one black man, two white men and five white women, he said. Were they trying to send him and the family a message? How it began On January 14, , around 3 p. The mother took offense and called police. City law prohibits "unnecessary noise" and provides that offenders get a warning on the first offense in 24 hours and a citation on the second. A third complaint may result in a misdemeanor charge. Despite the door being closed, Newman fired his handgun approximately four times and killed Hill. Lopez did not open fire. Not realizing Hill was dead, the deputies called for a SWAT team and snipers, according to the lawsuit. They kicked in doors and cut holes in the garage door, the suit claimed. Once inside, officers found Hill dead with an unloaded handgun in his back pocket, not his hand, court records show. Toxicology would later show Hill was intoxicated, to the point he could not legally drive. She sat on a bench at the school across the street as the encounter unfolded. Responding to the lawsuit claim that Hill never raised his firearm or threatened deputies, Newman retorted simply, "Denied. One is what he called the "evasiveness" of a police expert, who, despite answering defense questions, claimed to be hard of hearing when Phillips questioned him, the lawyer said. Phillips also alleged deputies changed their story about how Hill was holding the gun and whether he aimed it at Lopez, the other deputy. There were issues regarding timing as well, the attorney said. It was determined that Newman fired all four shots in less than 1. How did Hill get the gun in his back pocket after he was shot? Another factor prompting the attorney to seek a new trial is that the defense mentioned Hill was on probation for drug possession, which Phillips feels was meant to vilify Hill, as Newman had no way of knowing this when he responded. He said he will be filing his motion for a new trial in the same federal court in coming weeks.
