Pin Shares Like thousands of other kids his age, Ben Sommer was conceived through alternative insemination and raised in a lesbian household. My conception was perhaps the most organized and scientific miracle of the modern American familyâ€™my architecture, the dream of dozens of individuals conducting their work across thousands of miles. I was conceived through alternative insemination. Since opening its doors in , TSBC has helped families without the ability to conceive on their own to birth over 2, children. Two thirds of those have ended up, like me, being raised in a lesbian household. I am not as much an oddity as you might think. As of , some , children in the United States had same sex-parents. We are a generation that is just now beginning to come of age and able to share our stories. I never gave much thought to that mysterious figure across the country. Is having two moms really all that different than having a mom and a dad? Parents are parents, right? Asking a close male friend to donate, like some couples have done, can create unforeseen consequences. In the past, there have been custody battles between the donor and the parents raising the child. This was the case with a friend of mine, whose parents arranged donation from a male family friend. With a semi-anonymous donor like the man my parents chose, it would be clear who my parents were. I remember feeling self-conscious when my biological mother took me to the batting cages in the suburbs of Boston, in former warehouses and factories that smelled of sweat and pine tar, and had no heatingâ€™places built for father-son time, where my mother, barely 5-foot-6, placed herself next to burly dads and fed me fastballs through the Iron Mike. As I grew up and made male friends, I was surrounded by fathers. One father told us stories of Robin Hood and his adventures in Sherwood Forest. When the injuries became too much, they passed me off to some heterosexual family, whose dad could take the physical blows I delivered. My parents had, from time to time, brought up the subject casually, but I always feigned apathy. But recently I realized that I may have not been as apathetic as I pretended to be. Hollywood may have something to do with it. We dragged my younger sister to the theater. The first half of movie was believable. The family structure mirrored our own, even down to the mother with a career in health care. This could be my family, I thought. But when the sperm donor and one of the mothers sleep together, my sister gasped. This would never happen. Become a supporter and enjoy The Good Men Project ad free Walking out of that movie, I remember wondering how my sperm donor would fit into my life. I know other kids who have met their donors. Often, the situation plays out differently. In many cases, the donor does become a part of the family. Would I have a responsibility to him as a son? Would he have a responsibility to me as my biological father? Would it turn out to be an immense disappointment? I began preparations to meet donor Some expectations cannot be met. Some decisions to donate, over 20 years ago, may not have been made with a lifetime commitment in mind. Some are fathersâ€™in the very real senseâ€™with children of their own. A week later I received his information: A year-old pictureâ€™a middle aged man standing against a marble wallâ€™was included. He had short black hair, darker than mine. Despite the pink polo shirt, he looked serious, even tough. I sent him an email.

Chapter 2 : Stories - Anonymous Us

The Sperm Donor's Daughter and Other Tales of Modern Family has 7 ratings and 0 reviews. Few revelations are more disturbing than those that meddle with.

We have always been honest about this. She was a grad student at the time. When I inadvertently found this out, I was stunned, then sad, then actually grief struck as if someone had died – whereas someone was born, perhaps a number of someones. She would not tell me how many eggs were retrieved, if this is the correct question. She did not want to discuss it. My mom disclosed to me at age 35 my sister was donor conceived. Three years later a separate donor contributed to my birth. I never felt close with my dad. I knew we were beyond different. Emotionally, verbally, looks, interests. We never really were close as I grew up. He never taught me how to be a man. Never talked about his past. I grew up just trial and error. I never felt close to my sister. We – Potential Mom I am a 30yr old single female. I am currently not in any relationship, have not been in one for 7 years, and have no desire for one. I do have some health issues that could affect my ability to get pregnant so I do feel that time is ticking. I am not lonely, and do not want a child because of loneliness. I am also attracted to a different ethnicity and would likely – Alone I was conceived using both donor egg and donor sperm. I was raised by a single mother desperate for children. I feel so alone, the only person I know I am related to is my twin sister, and even we look nothing alike. I am of the male side of scenarios like this, and getting bashed for being a donor. You have no reason to feel guilty or be apologetic, and I refuse to accept guilt from my side. You have the same right as any woman to be a mother, and with modern medical technology you can find a man that has the traits you want to see in your child. Adopting a child is so much better for everyone – Considering conceiving via donor, but worried by testimonies – perspectives? I am a 37 year old woman considering conceiving a child via a donor, and came on to this site as I wanted to know how donor-conceived children felt about their origin. I am now very concerned having read some of the testimonies on here that it can have a really negative impact on the child – in some cases to the point that they seem to wish they had not been born – and I would like to know further perspectives. My wife and I heterosexual couple have had five tries of ivf and three iui. That was one of the most painful things to experience. I will never forget the cries of my wife when there was no heartbeat on the scan. It was a silent miscarriage, so the foetus had to be removed. We have been suffering trying to get pregnant but our chances are very low. Both of our tests are poor and we have both tried. Ever since I was little I was told that I wanted to know the identity of the sperm donor, but as my mother could be considered one of the pioneers of such technique is a task quite difficult to achieve. I signed up for a DNA site and found many half siblings. I have the answers my newly found genetic relatives may be looking for. My dad donated with anonymity and still wants that. How could I not respect that? This would be the first time I express myself. I guess even love can forget that a person exists. Sometimes I question myself if god even listens to me when I cry, pray, or even feel down. I have a crush on this girl whom I am hoping to have a relationship with but I am –
