Storybook Land has been keeping the spirit of childhood alive in an entertaining and educational atmosphere for 50 years. There is a world of wonderful things to see and do at Storybook Land. 20 acres of family fun where you can walk through the pages of children's classic stories and nursery rhymes.

Create the backdrop for your game with pretty scrapbook paper. I simply layered two pieces of paper from the stack to fit the height of my board and then taped them together. I flipped the two pieces of paper over and then filled in the gaps on either side with striped paper. I pieced it all together to fit the size of the board and then taped the pieces from the back. The entire game is removable from the board, which is great if you are using a board from around the house in this case we borrowed the board from our daily calendar and will need to remove it after the party. You can print them off from online. I Googled each character my son told me more like excitedly yelled to me and picked the image I liked the best. I threw the images into Photoshop just so I could fit more than one to a page and then printed them off. I just tried to get them in the same ballpark. Cut out each character carefully. It is putzy, but I think cutting each one out really looks nice when they are placed on the decorative paper. Lay out all of your characters on the board to get an idea of how you want to place them. Once you have them nicely arranged, go ahead and glue them down! Add the letter stickers next to each character. I designed little answer sheets to look like library check-out sheets. Fill one out yourself and use it as a Key. The game is all finished and ready for your party! I love having games like these that guests can do on their own during the party. Guests can play these games while snacking on food or when everyone is mingling. Towards the end of the party, you can collect the answer sheets and find out who won! For our party we handed everyone back their answer sheet and had them mark how many answers they got right as my son read off the names of the characters. It was a cute way to include him and he had a lot of fun shouting out the answers! Yay the storybook party game is complete! It was such a fun game to play at our party and was great for kids and adults. All these DIY projects definitely gave our party a personal touch and were great ways to keep our party to a reasonable budget. Chapter 9 : Lehigh Valley Princess | Allentown | A Storybook Party

So, if, like me, you like the idea of hosting a kid's party at home, here's a bit of a how-to guide for a Princess and the Pea/Storybook Party that I hosted earlier this year. To decide on a party theme, I always have my kids choose what kind of cake they would like first and then plan a theme around their choice.
