Chapter 1 : Home [CLMP] - Community of Literary Magazines and PressesCommunity of Magazines and Presses

The CLMP Directory of Literary Magazines and Presses is the essential source for all aspiring writers. This annual who's who of literary publications contains completely updated entries for independent book publishers, literary magazines, and online literary journals.

A passionate interest in literature as a living and growing art form, and community building, are essential. All candidates must possess keen long-range planning and intense multitasking skills, comfort with public speaking, strong teaching skills, and possess visionary leadership ability. We communicate the art of literary publishing to readers, writers, booksellers, librarians, educators, funders and other literary stakeholders, and work to bring all of these communities together. CLMP carries out this mission so that essential literary voices from all corners can make their way from writers to readers. CLMP exists to serve magazines, presses, Internet publishers, and chapbook and zine publishers mission-driven to publish literature. Independent literary publishers make up an underserved, uniquely vulnerable and essential field that connects the greatest diversity of writers to equally diverse communities of readers. Since , CLMP has worked to bring these literary publishers together to form a mutually supportive community that is often at the vanguard of progress. CLMP provides technical assistance, facilitates peer-to-peer learning and group action, and builds bridges to connect diverse communities of literary stakeholders. The ED will develop deep knowledge of the field, further develop core programs, operations, fundraising, and business plans, to be created in partnership with and reported to the Board of Directors. Work includes maintaining and establishing key organization systems, developing and overseeing communications strategies, and working with CLMP Board of Directors in essential mission and strategic planning toward focusing and achieving the goals and potential of the organization. Ensure ongoing programmatic excellence, program evaluation, and consistent quality of finance and administration, fundraising, communications, and systems; recommend timelines and resources needed to achieve mutually agreed upon strategic goals. Identify and actively engage and energize constituents, partnering organizations, and funders. Ensure effective systems to track scaling progress, and regularly evaluate program components, so as to measure successes that can be effectively communicated to board, funders, and other constituents. Identify potential sources, and develop and execute fundraising activities to support existing and developing programs. Develop, refine and deepen all aspects of communicationsâ€™ from web presence to external relations, with the goal of creating a stronger brand and reaching the greatest number of constituents. Use external presence and relationships to garner new opportunities. Design and implement program expansion and strategic planning process toward achieving organizational mission goals. Build strategic partnerships, and establish relationships with potential funders toward increasing the organizational budget. Exceptional benefits package including health and dental, life insurance, retirement plan, FSA, TransitCheck and generous vacation and paid holidays. Please do not call. Using your email as cover letter, detail your interest in CLMP and your specific skills and background. Applications will be accepted through August 31st, though top candidates may be contacted to interview sooner if you are unavailable during any part of August, please indicate so. The Search Committee seeks to identify ideal candidates as soon as possible. Ideally, the new Executive Director would begin toward the end of September or beginning of October, though other arrangements may be possible.
