The paper will pay close attention to the hybridized and multi-ethnic nature of Poland's past, pointing to the interlocking cultural narratives of a broader region laced with shifting borders. There will be a strong focus on often painful international relations especially with Russia and on comparative perspectives that place Poland in a much larger, pan-European context. Weekly lectures and fortnightly supervisions will cover the history of Polish culture from before the symbolic beginnings of until the present day. Students will encounter a wide range of cultural productions, including novels, poems, plays, short stories, memoirs, historical studies, films, musical compositions and works of visual art. Throughout the paper, the powerful influence of historical experience on national culture will remain a central concern. Students will learn the basics of the Polish language in twice-weekly classes throughout the academic year. No prior experience is required. The second half of the paper will feature an increasing emphasis on the challenges and techniques of creative translation. By the end of the paper, students will be able to complete short literary translation assignments from Polish into English. A History by Adam Zamoyski for a general overview of Polish history. Students should also familiarize themselves with the first two units of the Polish language textbook, Colloquial Polish: The Complete Course for Beginners. The course will include sixteen lectures, eight in Michaelmas and eight in Lent. The lectures provide an introduction to and overview of the course. There will be two revision seminars in Easter term. Students will have ten supervisions: Students will attend two language classes weekly, commencing from absolute beginner level. Lessons will strongly focus on practical elements of spoken and written communication. The course will include various materials, including films and musical works, but the vast majority of sources will be textual. Students will read novels, poems, plays, short stories, hip hop lyrics, memoirs and historical studies. Certain texts will be obligatory, but students will also be able to choose particular areas of interest for more focused study. Lectures and Seminars Section 3: All questions have equal weight. Section A is a translation task. You will translate a short literary passage approx. Section B has at least six questions. These will cover one or more specific texts from various sections of the course. Section C has at least six questions. These will cover key themes running throughout the course. You will have plenty of opportunities to work on translation tasks throughout the paper in seminars, supervisions and language lessons. Sections B and C: The general format of the exam questions will be similar to the essay questions posed for supervisions, which will consequently form a key part of your exam preparation. However, questions in Section C may range across various topics, so you will have to be prepared to draw connections between historical periods. Practice questions of this kind will also be provided for revision supervisions in the Easter term. Please check with the departmental secretary for times and venues. Poland, Past and Present 2. Discuss some continuities and ruptures between the pagan pre-history of the Polish lands and the post-Christian Polish state. Early Polish poetry borrows and reshapes forms and themes from Latin

Christian culture. Medieval poetry constantly returns to the theme of death. Polish literature from the Middle Ages gives an insight into relations between social groups. The Golden Age and Sarmatian Culture 1. The Polish vernacular was fostered by religious dispute. Discuss some similarities and differences between ONE of Jan Kochanowski's songs or epigrams and ONE of his Laments, considering questions of style, content, tone, mood and worldview. Poland's strength in its Golden Age lay in democracy, liberty, diversity and tolerance. Make an argument for or against this proposition. Enlightenment and Romanticism 1. The Polish Enlightenment came too late to change the country's negative image in other parts of Europe. After the Third Partition, the Respublica disappeared from the map of Europe, but it survived in the minds of its inhabitants. The art of the Polish Romantics was not art for art's sake. Discuss the poetic expression of exile with reference to Adam Mickiewicz's Sonety krymskie Crimean Sonnets. Positivism and Decadence 1. Nineteenth-century Polish realist writing embodied a new spirit of social critique in the wake of failed national uprisings. The Young Poland movement was essentially a new incarnation of Romanticism. Polish painting of the Young Poland period reflects new currents in social and intellectual life at the turn of the century. Independent Poland and the Second World War 1. The instability of form was a central concern for several interwar Polish writers. All literature is political. We are trying to enlarge the possibilities of composition by abandoning lifelike logic in art, by introducing fantastic psychology and fantastic action Witkiewicz. Nothing is more serious than the absurd. Bruno Schulz's literary technique is to fill everyday things with unexpected content. The first-person narrator of Tadeusz Borowski's stories presents himself as both victim and perpetrator. We lived in the plural Zagajewski. Communist ideology succeeded in attracting many Polish writers and intellectuals after the war. In Polish culture, the poet is the acknowledged legislator of the world. Post-war Polish poetry and cinema deal with similar themes. Polish poets between and found many different ways to deal with political questions. Discuss one key political or cultural conflict in contemporary Poland. Discuss some challenges and opportunities of Poland's membership in the European Union. The novel is above all a vehicle for social critique. Contemporary Polish writing gives expression to marginal perspectives that were previously inadmissible. The role of the writer is to shock. Jews in Polish Culture 1. Poland has been an asylum for Jews and a cradle of modern Jewish culture. Discuss the conflict between Hasidism and the Jewish Enlightenment in the nineteenth century. The Jedwabne controversy is the central event in post-Polish-Jewish relations. Polish Jews have often constructed a sense of dual national identity.
