

Chapter 1 : Bernie Mac - Wikipedia

This is a routine comedy but it has two great actors at its fulcrum. Bob Traven (Jack Lemmon) returns to Italy on business after 40 years and is sought out by his former buddy Antonio (Marcello).

During , Mac moved to Tampa, Florida to attend Jesuit High School after the death of his mother during his sophomore year. During his 20s through his early 30s, Mac worked in a variety of jobs, including janitor, coach, professional mover, cook, bus driver, Sears Delivery man, furniture mover and a UPS agent while doing comedy on the weekends at funerals, clubs, and parties. After he won the Miller Lite Comedy Search at the age of 32, his popularity as a comedian began to grow. Mac had his first starring role as "Dollar Bill", a silly, slick-talking club owner in The Players Club. He also starred in Guess Who? In his later years, he hosted the reality television talent show Last Comic Standing. He co-starred with Samuel L. Jackson in the musical comedy Soul Men as "Floyd Henderson". His final film role was as Jimmy Lunchbox in the Disney film Old Dogs which was released a year after his death. He starred alongside John Travolta and Robin Williams in that film. Bernie Mac at the Transformers premiere in In the Fox network gave Mac his own television sitcom called The Bernie Mac Show portraying a fictional version of himself. It was a success, in part because it allowed Mac to stay true to his stand-up comedy roots, breaking the fourth wall to communicate his thoughts to the audience. The show was not renewed after the "3" season. The series finale aired on April 14, However, the finale left a conclusion for the series, and no ending to the storyline of Bernie and Wanda trying to adopt a baby which had been abandoned a few episodes earlier. Among other awards, the show won an Emmy [7] for "Outstanding Writing", the Peabody Award for excellence in broadcasting, and the Humanitas Prize for television writing that promotes human dignity. Instead of saying "root, root, root for the Cubbies" Mac said, "root, root, root for the champs! I was a street performer for two years. I went into clubs in and was on the road 47 weeks out of the year. Sarcoidosis frequently attacked his lungs. After a week of unsuccessful medical treatment, Mac went into cardiac arrest and subsequently died during the early morning hours on August 9, from complications of pneumonia. He was 50 years old. Daley , Samuel L. Hughley , Cedric the Entertainer and Steve Harvey. Escape 2 Africa were released three months after his death. Hughley , Cedric the Entertainer , and Guy Torry who was the original host at the beginning of tour.
