Megan K. Fox was born on January 15th in Dublin, Ireland as Megan Kathleen Fox. She is a director and writer, known for short films 'Battle' (), 'Slow Down' () and 'Girl' (). Her graduation film 'Battle' () won awards internationally and saw Megan feature on an episode of.

Reitman commented, "We want to make unusual films, and anything that turns a genre on its ear interests Dan and I. It was just so original, so imaginative", she stated. She wanted to "honor that, and at the same time, [she] had never really seen this particular subgenre done with girls and [she] tried to do a little of both". I want to write roles that service women. I want to tell stories from a female perspective. She wanted to show the "almost horrific" aspect of such devotion and its relation to parasitism. I always thought that was such a sad image. Jennifer, now possessed by a demon and subsequently altered into a succubus, sets out on a bloody rampage in which she devours boys, and it is up to Needy to stop her. Cody said "Jennifer is a product of a culture that pressures girls to be skinny, beautiful and just like movie stars" and that she "hopes the film inspires girls to take life into their own hands and do with it, what they want". The scene was "intended to be something profound and meaningful" to her and Kusama. Obviously we knew people were going to totally sensationalize it. There is a sexual energy between the girls which is kind of authentic, because I know when I was a teen-aged girl, the friendships that I had with other girls were almost romantic, they were so intense. Close to "a third of the way into the process" she felt that she was incapable of doing so because "the humor just kept sneaking in". She stated, "I have a macabre sense of humor. A lot of the things in the movie that are horrifying are funny to me. So, I actually think comedy and horror are kind of similar in that way. They did a live cast of me from the shoulders up. They created me and then put the teeth in", stated Fox. So it would go from me, then in post-production it would somehow go to her and the fake head. They would mix them all together. It goes around the back of my ear and then I bite down on it on the side of my face, like this, and it projectiles. Fox agreed, "Yeah, and it projects whatever that material was. It was pretty intense. I was the one doing the puking. They found this to be more enjoyable. From there, KNB "produced some tests, grabbing a bunch of stills from [Fox] and [did their] work to indicate how that balance could exist between special effects and visual effects and still maintain a level of subtlety" and that "[MPC] responded really well". To combat this, they ended up focusing on anything below her nose, where they had the freedom to make things "as horrific as [they] needed to" and then above her nose, "[they] could manipulate it somewhat with warps and color correction in her eye sockets. So even at her worst, she had some of that sexiness throughout". Stage one is beautiful Jennifer and then two and three were strictly makeup where her eyes become more recessed and she would start to look plain like the rest of us. And stage four was some custom dentures that KNB made for her, and then visual effects in stage four was mainly facial warping and recessing her eyes some more and having a pinning effect to her irises and a variety of other musculature deforms, just bringing her cheek bones down more. To remedy this, they hired a photo double. He said that "when it came time to shoot any of these jaw moments, [Fox] would act out in rehearsal how she was going to attack her victim and [they would] fine tune that blocking so it was relatively locked". Additionally, the team would have Fox wear contact lenses and go through exactly the same motions as normal Jennifer. These different poses helped the two teams perfect the jaw scenes. They transformed the mysterious waterfall into a whirlpool. And the night shots play a pivotal role in the film, and we do a huge crane over. She had asked to be set on fire. By the way, they would not allow me to do a full burn for insurance purposes, even though I argued that Burt Reynolds had done it once", stated Cody. Some of the scenes, particularly those situated in a school setting, were filmed in local Vancouver -area schools such as Vancouver Technical Secondary School, Langley Secondary School and University Hill Secondary School. Fox said that while filming her highly anticipated kissing scene with Seyfried that Seyfried was "extremely uncomfortable" but that she herself was not. It is a woman. Something about it felt uncomfortable for me. She said, "As the movie progresses, it becomes a pretty clearly music-oriented movie. Some of those bands were totally made up and some of them are not. Additionally, he complimented Fox as "[coming] through" in her portrayal and "play[ing] the role straight". He gave the film three out of four stars. Charity credited the dialogue as "bitingly smart, funny teen-speak Scott of The New York Times concluded "the movie deservesâ€”and is likely to winâ€”a devoted cult following, despite its flaws" and "[these flaws] are mitigated by a sensibility that mixes playful pop-culture ingenuity with a healthy shot of feminist anger". But for a while, this has real fangs". Watch it, forget it, move on". An episode of Murder, She Wrote has more thrills. This, according to Grady, allowed viewers to see the film, rather than as a sex fantasy, as a revenge fantasy as Jennifer uses her abused body against her attackers. Now, Grady wrote, this straight male gaze is no longer the default for film critics and a broader audience. Analyst Jeff Bock, of Exhibitor Relations, reasoned the film underperformed at the box office due to two reasons; the first, he said, is the genre. Bock stated that Americans get horror and comedy, but with the idea "of those two things together in one place, people suddenly get very dumb". He noted films Tremors , Slither , Shaun of the Dead , Eight Legged Freaks and The Evil Dead series , and said that while many of those are considered critical and business successes, "none of them have brought in the megabucks that a simple horror or comedy can. He said the film is set in high school and "sounds like the perfect package for teens" but that "the R rating banned many teens from the theaters" and the studio was left with "an R-rated film marketed to whom, exactly? The first, he said, is the distributor. Sorry if you wanted Heathers with demons, fellas.
