Barreto died and the land went through several owners. In the s, Chinese immigrants formed a series of fishing settlements along Carmel Bay including one at Stillwater Cove, next to Pebble Beach. They collected abalone and various fish. Sightseers riding horses or carriages along the Mile Drive sometimes stopped at Pebble Beach to pick up agate and other stones polished smooth by the waves, and they commented on a few unusual tree formations known as the Witch Tree and the Ostrich Tree—the latter formed by two trees leaning on each other. At that time, the Chinese fishing community continued in existence despite mounting anti-Chinese sentiment among Monterey residents of European heritage. In the s, the automobile began replacing horses on Mile Drive, and by there were only automobiles. Hobart was hired by PIC manager A. Shepard to design the Pebble Beach Lodge, a rustic log-cabin-style one-story inn completed by The rambling lodge, featuring private patio nooks and a wide pergola made of local logs, was positioned halfway along Mile Drive, overlooking Pebble Beach. Operated under the same management as the Hotel Del Monte, food service was available at all hours, including fresh local abalone chowder. Hobart worked with Clarence Tantau to create a luxurious multi-story hotel, and Hobart designed a signature "Roman Plunge" pool to the east of the hotel. The golf course and the new lodge held a grand opening on February 22, Morse brought his son on board as president in The lodge was expanded with offices and a shopping arcade. Isutani was investigated by the FBI in the early s for money laundering. The tree was blown down by a storm on January 14, In , the company initiated Measure A, a controversial development proposal. In , the plan went before the California Coastal Commission for approval. On June 14, , the plan was submitted again. It was sometimes used as scenic background in movies and television. It was displayed as part of the coast of Italy, in the movie Mr. While Monterey County has a very large Hispanic population, Pebble Beach is more ethnically homogenous, with Poppy Hills is also a public course. Several of these courses are widely celebrated, especially Pebble Beach Golf Links. The course is set to host the tournament again in Watson was used to guide visitors around the resort. His objective was to place as many of the holes as possible along the rocky and beautiful Monterey coast line. The course was extensively revised in by H. Other architects who have worked on the course include Alistair Mackenzie and Robert Hunter and Jack Nicklaus creation of the new fifth hole, Golf Course Histories has an aerial comparison of the changes to the course, notably the 17th hole, from to The sale, however, generated controversy when it was discovered that one of the investors had alleged ties to organized crime in Japan. It was then bought by another group of Japanese investors before being sold to the Pebble Beach Co. In , Pebble hosted its first major - the U. A match play event, it was won by Harrison R. Johnston of Minnesota, while Bobby Jones tied for medalist honors in the stroke play qualifier. The tournament held annually, usually in February, and is an unusual four-round tournament. The final round on Sunday is played at Pebble Beach, but the first three rounds of pro-am play are contested in round-robin format at Pebble Beach and two other courses: Pebble Beach has hosted the U. Open five times, most recently in Pebble Beach was also the site of the PGA Championship in , won by Lanny Wadkins in a sudden-death playoff over Gene Littler , the first use of the format in a major championship. Many other high-profile championships have been staged on the course including several U. Amateur Championships; Nicklaus won his second title in the event here in Layout and signature holes[edit] View of the 6th hole from the 17th hole In laying out the course, Jack Neville attempted to bring as many holes to the rocky coastline as possible. The first two holes are inland, the third runs toward the ocean, and the fourth and fifth holes run along the Stillwater Cove. This arrangement allowed Neville to make use of a peninsula which juts straight out into the Pacific Ocean. Prior to , the fifth hole was an uphill par 3, but after the Pebble Beach Company acquired additional ocean front property, Jack Nicklaus designed a revised hole that sits hard by Stillwater Cove. The sixth, seventh and tee shot of the eighth holes are situated on Arrowhead point. The second shot of the eighth hole and the ninth and tenth holes are situated above Carmel Bay. The course then runs inland from the eleventh to the sixteenth holes. The Par 5 fourteenth hole has usually been one of the toughest holes on the PGA tour. The 16th hole runs alongside the 3rd hole to complete the figure 8 and bring the dramatic closing holes along Stillwater Cove. These include the long par 3 17th, whose place in golf history was assured when Jack Nicklaus and Tom Watson made key shots there to win U. There is no agreed upon signature hole at Pebble Beach Golf Links, but the most obvious candidate would be 8. Notable holes include the short par 3 7th, which plays to just over yards even during major championships, is one of the most photographed holes in the world. From an elevated tee, players hit straight out toward the Pacific Ocean, with nothing in the background but the often violent Pacific Ocean surf crashing against rocky outcroppings. The long par 4 8th runs alongside the 6th hole leaving the peninsula and heading back toward the coastline. A dogleg right, the ocean is a constant companion along the entire right side of the hole. The landing area is extremely generous in width, but a long straight drive could leave the fairway and enter an inlet of the sea. Because the landing area is elevated on a cliff above the green, players have a good view of the small landing target a mid to long iron away. Jack Nicklaus has called this his favorite approach shot in all of golf. The par 3 17th is situated on a smaller peninsula to the west of the one that holds the th holes. Although there is an ocean view and the sea runs along the left side, the primary challenge of the 17th is its length playing yards during championships and its unusual shaped green. The green is long and thin, tilted about 45 degrees from the angle of the golfer on the tee. Depending upon pin position and wind, a golfer may use a great variety of clubs for the tee shot and, although the green is large in area, the landing area for any approach is relatively small. A large sand trap guards the front and left. The 18th hole is a medium length par 5 about yards with Pacific Ocean all along the left. What may be the greatest closing hole in golf was originally an unremarkable par 4. In , William Herbert Fowler added almost yards to the hole. As early as a year after that parcel was sold, the course tried to buy back the land but was unsuccessful until Jack Nicklaus designed a new par 3 on that land. Recent changes done in were to holes 3, 6, 9, 10, and 12, which changed the dynamics of play with new bunkers located on each fairway. These additions were integrated for the U. Open , which also modified the 2nd hole to a par 4, which reduced the course to a par 71 for the championship, which was lengthened to yards m.

Beach Stones Types As with all other rocks, there are three beach stones types according to how they originated: Igneous, Metamorphic and Sedimentary beach rocks. The first two types of rocks, Igneous and Metamorphic, are formed after molten rock from magma and lava eventually cools down and finally hardens into rock again. To these beach stone types belong pebbles like: Sedimentary beach stones are formed on shores or in the water by the weathering of older stones. These bits and chips of older stones settle to the ground on layers along with the remains of organic materials, like parts from plants and animals. Through time they harden into compact sediment. Fossil stones found on the beach are this kind of rocks. Other examples of sedimentary rocks and beach pebbles are: Depending on the geological history of the place, beach pebbles and stones could be a variety of the above kinds of rocks igneous, metamorphic, sedimentary with a change in percentage of occurrence of each rock kind. Also, rocks and beach pebbles too, are composed of minerals. So one could group stones according to what mineral they are made of. Jasper and agate stones belong to the quartz family. But not all stones are composed of only one or two minerals. In that case, a rock or pebble stone will belong to more than one mineral groups. Minerals are composed of chemicals. For example, a quartz pebble and a jadeite pebble belong to the chemical group of Silicates. A malachite or dolomite pebble are members of the Carbonates, Nitrates, Borates group. So this is another kind of possible categorization. For a more detailed explanation and a deeper analysis of the different types of stones and pebbles go to the following resources:
