This event was designed to bring business to the Boardwalk: Three hundred and fifty men pushed the chairs. Thus, "newspapers as far west as Pittsburgh and as far south as Washington, D. The winners would participate in the Atlantic City contest. We are moving it forward and evolving it in this cultural revolution. Beginning in , Bob Russell served as the first official host of the pageant. I felt so rejected. Here I was chosen to represent American womanhood and then America treated me like this. The pageant was first televised nationally in , hosted by Bob Russell. It would also be the last time Russell served as host. He recommended, and was replaced by, Bert Parks , who served as the host for the second televised pageant in and stayed as host until The first demonstration took place during the Miss America pageant held on September 7, won by Miss Illinois , Judith Ford , when about members of the group New York Radical Women demonstrated as part of the Miss America protest. In fact, there was no bra burning, nor did anyone remove her bra. For the first time in pageant history, a reigning Miss America was the target of death threats and hate mail. I want to apologize for anything that was said or done that made you feel any less the Miss America you are and the Miss America you always will be. Beck, who had suggested it, was fired. Davuluri was also the first Indian-American and second Asian-American to win the crown. The emails, sent between and , featured instances of expletive name-calling and unprofessional comments. The comments were often sexual or violent in nature and targeted former Miss America winners, notably Mallory Hagan and Katherine Shindle , both of whom joined 47 other former Miss Americas including all Miss Americas from to [] in signing a joint open letter calling for the firing or resignation of all involved. They stated that the organization does not "condone the use of inappropriate language" and reported that its investigation had determined that Haskell was under "unreasonable distress resulting from intense attacks on his family from disgruntled stakeholders". The organization also reported that its relationship with Friedman had been terminated. Haskell explained that attacks on his character impaired his judgment when responding to the emails. In June , there was an announcement that Miss America contestants would no longer be judged based on their physical appearance. Thus, the national Miss America event would be considered a competition, rather than a beauty pageant, and the titleholders would now be candidates, rather than contestants.
