Chapter 1 : The Pocket Daring Book for Girls: Things to Do by Andrea J. Buchanan

A portable, pocket-sized take on the bestselling phenomenon, The Daring Book for Girls, this book is filled with many favorite activities from the original, plus some exciting new games, crafts, and projects.

But my parents always make my summer fun; they always plan the camping, the beaches, the parties, the workshops and the road trip. It looks simple but I really enjoyed reading the facts the authoress include in the book. Do you like adventure? How about ghost stories or do you like to play skateboard? Showing the book to the little daring readers! I know boys and girls will enjoy reading this book although the title made the boys scared. This book is a small size pocketbook in which you can easily carry to anywhere you wanted, from the river while paddling your canoe or in the camp where scary little voices wanted to scare you. This is a very handy book to all ages! Below are the things that I really enjoyed; 1. The nail has been galvanized, which means it was coated with zinc to help resist rust. The lemon contains acid. This acid dissolves the zinc on the nail. In chemistry terms, this means that the zinc loses an electron and becomes a positive force. The moisture in the lemon functions as an electrolyte, a fluid that conducts electrons - if you will, a swimming pool of electrons. The electron shoots out zinc, through the lemon, to react with the copper on the wire. The copper gains an electron and becomes a negative force. The exchange of electrons is a chemical reaction. It creates chemical energy, or charge. All that charge needs is a circuit. A homemade or your own made Zip Line, can help you experience the fun and excitement! I want to try this once I get hold on those big trees lying in the backyard. Who said only girls can read this book, hey everyone can! Things to Do by Andrea J. Buchanan and Miriam Peskowitz, 4 Sweets and those daring girls who wanted to go adventure! How can I add all my favorites to this review when I need to limit the size and images? Sorry guys if you really have hard time loading this page, I only wanted to post some sample images.
