A park and ride lot is located southwest of the intersection with the southern terminus of MD Along this stretch, the roadway passes west of Huntingtown High School. A short distance later, MD 2 crosses MD Bay Front Road and passes east of a park and ride lot as it continues north, with former alignments of the road designated as suffixed segments of MD The route continues through rural land and passes through the community of Birdsville. The road heads northeast, with residential development increasing as the road approaches its intersection with MD Central Avenue. Past this intersection, the road traverses residential areas before it crosses over the South River. The former alignments of MD 2 around the bridge are designated as MD Upon crossing the river, MD 2 continues past residential neighborhoods and widens to six lanes. It comes to an interchange with MD Aris T. Past the MD interchange, the route heads into commercial areas on the outskirts of Annapolis , with MD Old Solomons Island Road branching off from the route and paralleling it to the east. The route intersects the north end of a segment of MD Baltimore Annapolis Boulevard , which branches off and runs west of the route a short distance later. The road continues through wooded neighborhoods with some businesses, eventually reaching Severna Park. The road continues past residences before reaching Pasadena. The route continues north as a six-lane highway and intersects MD Ordnance Road. It passes more businesses before coming to an exit and southbound entrance with a spur of I IB that provides access to and from I , westbound I , and I A short distance later, it comes to an interchange with I Harbor Tunnel Thruway a short distance later that has access from northbound MD 2 to northbound I and from southbound I to southbound MD 2. Along this one-way pair, the route carries one lane in each direction with the exception of Light Street, where the northbound direction has four lanes. Near Harborplace , the route splits into another one-way pair with northbound MD 2 running along three-lane Calvert Street and southbound MD 2 running along four-lane St. This boulevard, which would have a minimum road width of 16 feet 4. The commission asked the Maryland General Assembly to pass a bill releasing the commission from the responsibility of completing the highway from Glen Burnie to South Baltimore. However, the Maryland General Assembly disagreed with the Maryland State Roads Commission and passed a bill in requiring the commission to finish the boulevard between Glen Burnie and South Baltimore. The entire length of the Baltimore-Annapolis Boulevard was widened to 22 feet 6. Leonard to beyond Quaker Swamp, with several relocations including a relocation at that creek, in and The bypassed portions of MD 2 became segments of MD , with the letter suffix on the highway designation corresponding to the order the sections were bypassed. The highway from Edgewater south to Harwood then known as Butlers was widened and resurfaced with bituminous stabilized gravel in and The former alignment through the community became MD Leonard to Port Republic in , with the former two-lane routing designated part of MD Leonard was shifted to a new divided highway. The bypassed alignment through Lusby and Solomons became another part of MD
