

Chapter 1 : Holiday houses and apartments in Beaconsfield Upper

Upper Yarra Valley and Dandenong Ranges Regional Strategy Plan. This plan aims to protect and maintain the character of our region.

Tour the wine area of Yarra Valley and return via the Dandenong Ranges, and you get a nice day trip from Melbourne. There are pretty hill top villages and the famous Healesville Sanctuary where you can meet with native Australian animals. Right after the suburbs of Melbourne you can begin enjoying a pretty scenery with rolling hills, after driving just half an hour from the city. We first followed the main road and then took smaller roads between vineyards in the beautiful Yarra Valley. Our first destination was the pretty tourist town of Healesville where we visited Healesville Sanctuary a few kilometres south of the town centre. Healesville Sanctuary Healesville Sanctuary is a zoo just one hour from Melbourne, showing native Australian animals. The sanctuary is set in bushland. Paths wind through areas with kangaroos, wallabies, wombats, dingoes, birds and many more animals typical to Australia. We had a nice walk at the zoo and could meet with Australian animals that we could hardly ever see in the wild. We saw a diving platypus and a screaming Tasmanian devil. There were rock-wallabies, tree-kangaroos and tiny potoroos. Here in the sanctuary you could look at them in specially-made rooms. After the Sanctuary we went back to Healesville and took the road towards Marysville. You can find many wineries right along the main roads. The road starts climbing and soon there is a lookout where you get a view of Maroondah Reservoir. Driving further you pass a picnic area along a small river. From that picnic area there is a path leading up to Tom Tom Picnic Ground. We instead continued driving along the road up to Tom Tom. We turned back from Tom Tom after walking a bit in the forest with high trees. It was surprising how high the trees were! Another popular destination where you can see mountain ash trees is the Toorangi forest further north. There were dozens of them and they all came very close. There were other birds too, like cockatoos and rainbow lorikeets. In Australia there are public barbeques that anyone can use. You can find them almost everywhere in the country: And people use them a lot. Even here in the Dandenongs lots of people and families, both young and old, had come for a weekend picnic. After the small town of Sassafras we turned off to a smaller road towards Belgrave. The road is very winding on the way to Mt Dandenong. There are pretty villages and rainforest areas along the route. I love walking in rainforests! He created a beautiful place in the rainforest where 92 of his ceramic sculptures can still be seen. His art work has been inspired by the indigenous desert people of the Pitjantjara and Arrernte. William Ricketts Sanctuary is absolutely worth a stop on your car trip to the Dandenong Ranges. You get both the statues and a lovely rainforest walk. Olinda and Sassafras On the way we visited two charming hilltop villages, Olinda and Sassafras. They have small stores, boutiques and eateries. They also make a good base for walks in the mountains. You can alternatively reach Belgrave by Melbourne suburban trains. Here are some more pictures of the area and the vineyards.
